

EXPECT ANARCHY
TO BLAST WAY TO
FRONT IN SPAIN

To Pass Advantage in Civil War to Insurgent Generalissimo Franco

FRESH OUTBREAK

Knickerbocker Says Atrocities of Both Sides are Equally Bad

LONDON, May 6.—Anarchy is threatening to blast its way to the front again in loyalist Spain and pass the advantage in the civil war to Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

From the beginning of the civil war, neutral Europe tended to favor Franco because he stood for "law and order," and Italy and Germany were able to assert they were intervening on Franco's side to save Spain from chaos and avert from Europe the danger of a "red spot of infection."

Wholesale slaughter of priests, nuns, aristocrats and rich middle-class people by government adherents at the outset of the conflict alienated especially British sympathies, but during the last few months the Valencia Government convinced many persons that the Anarchist gangs had been suppressed and order restored.

This, combined with the destruction and partial extermination of Guernica by Franco's German bombers swayed the British Government to defy Franco's protests and send the British navy to convoy Basque women and children and old men from Bilbao to a refuge abroad.

Now, however, the fresh outbreak of Anarchists in Catalonia has renewed British conviction it would be better for Franco to win, for, whatever the cost, it is a fact he maintains on his side considerably more order than prevails on the side of his enemies.

Personal observation supports the general impression that atrocities committed by both sides in the war are equally bad and executions behind the lines of loyalists and insurgents equally numerous, but it is a fact that mob violence is almost unknown on Franco's side, where the executions are carried out by order in an "orderly" fashion.

Until the first week of November, all prisoners taken by the insurgents were shot, as all prisoners taken by the loyalists were shot. Then Franco ordered a halt to the killing of all prisoners.

On my recent visit I was told the insurgents now hold around 9,000 prisoners, much to the disgust of the more radical-minded officers, who believe only complete extermination can end the civil war.

All the atrocity stories told by each side are probably true, judging from those personally witnessed. Revolting though atrocities are on one side, the point is Franco controls his situation and his orders are obeyed and he has had no trouble within his own ranks which he has not been able to suppress.

WOMEN PLAN TO BE EARLY FOR COURIER COOKING
SCHOOL TONIGHT, IN ORDER TO SECURE CHOICE
SEATS; PLEASED WITH PRACTICAL RECIPES GIVEN

Miss Edna M. Ferguson, Lecturer - Demonstrator, Pleased With Response

FINE SUGGESTIONS

Only Two More Nights Remain; Banner Crowds Are Expected at Each

Scores of women from all over this area expressed their intention at last evening's session of The Bristol Courier cooking school of being among the first in the Bristol M. E. Church lecture room tonight, in order to secure front seats.

The choice seats were taken at an early hour last evening, with the balcony proving very popular. Late-comers fully enjoyed the program, but scores of them vowed to be among the first tonight at the third session of the school over which Miss Edna M. Ferguson, nationally-known home economist presides.

Women of Bristol and outlying sections are putting their stamp of approval wholeheartedly on the school, which will continue tonight and tomorrow evening, starting promptly at eight o'clock. They are eager to learn all the good recipes and new cooking "wrinkles" possible, in order to care well for the health and happiness of their families.

The suggestion being heard in many neighborhoods today is "Let's go early tonight," and the home-makers who have enjoyed the first two sessions are not having any difficulty in inducing their neighbors to accompany them.

Dishes that are wholesome and health-giving, and yet easy to prepare and economical, are included in Miss Ferguson's programs. Last evening she made Texas hash, and the keen nostrils early detected the goodness of the dish. Corn fritters, flavored with parsley, and in which batter was mixed cracker crumbs, were made before the eyes of the few hundred women gathered; then for good measure Miss Ferguson concocted a cabbage, celery and pimiento salad; some chocolate crispies, a dainty sweet for young and old.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 6.—(INS)—Having already accepted as a matter of course the marvels of the San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge, opened barely five months ago, San Francisco today is preparing to throw open with characteristic pageantry her even more spectacular span—the 35-million dollar Golden Gate bridge, longest and highest suspension span built by man—traversing one of the world's most legendary historic waterways, the mile-wide Golden Gate.

Striking Actors May Turn To C. I. O.

Hollywood, May 6.—Angered by rebuffs from the American Federation of Labor, striking motion picture unions today threatened to turn to the militant Committee for Industrial Organization for support in their war against the film industry.

After a curt rejection of peace proposals by the Central Labor Council here, today, re-assigned picket lines about the "big ten" studios and announced the "strike is still on."

At the same time, Charles Lessing, head of the Federated Motion Picture Craft, admitted he is "seriously considering" calling a nation-wide boycott against all theatres showing pictures produced by the studios under fire.

Lessing said he had received "an unselfish offer of support" from the CIO in case he decides on this move.

Brush Fires Will Not Hinder
Dirigible

Lakehurst, N. J., May 6.—With their progress blocked by back fires, two wood fires in this area will burn themselves out today, before the transatlantic dirigible lands at the United States Naval Station here.

For a time it was feared the flames would provide a warm reception for the big airship, scheduled to complete its first crossing of the year at six p. m. A wide clearing prevented the fires from getting within three-quarters of a mile of the dirigible hangar here, so the woods fire would not have hampered the dirigible's landing, navy officers said.

Because of the epidemic, announcement was made that the gymnasium exhibit which was to be held this Wednesday and Thursday, will be held Wednesday, May 19.

The exhibition is under the direction of Miss Lillian V. Kelly, girls athletic instructor.

WOOD ST. TO BE REBUILT FOR PORTION OF LENGTH

Property Owners Advised To Have Pipe Connections Made at Once

WAIVE THE USUAL FEE

Wood street is to be rebuilt from Dorrance street to the Adams Hollow Creek, according to an announcement made today by the Street Committee of Bristol Borough Council. The work is expected to get underway early next week.

Announcement of the proposed work was made so as to advise property owners who might desire to have water, gas or sewer connections made into their property line. Those applying at once for permission to have such connections made will be granted permission to tear up the street without paying a fee for so doing. The permit fee will be waived if the application is made at once. Applications may be filed with the office of the borough engineer, Municipal Building.

A fee is always charged for tearing up streets to install water, sewer or gas connections because the street is damaged when once the surface has been laid and it is later ripped out. To obviate the necessity of ripping up a new street the street committee decided to waive the fee usually charged, providing the connections are made before the street is rebuilt.

Spirited Comedy Shown In
"King and Chorus Girl"

The unusual procedure of launching a newcomer to American films with a starring role is followed in "The King and the Chorus Girl," the spirited comedy romance produced by Mervyn LeRoy for Warner Bros., which opens today at the Grand Theatre.

The player in this case is Fernand Gravel, famous Continental screen star, who makes his American bow in this picture. LeRoy met him last year in Paris, promptly signed him to a long term contract and brought him to Hollywood.

LeRoy insists the action was not a gamble and declares his belief that American audiences will echo the praises of those in Europe once they see the tall, dark-haired, quiet spoken star. Incidentally, M. Gravel speaks English with an intriguing Oxfordian accent despite his birth in Belgium and his present residence in France. This is the result of his early schooling in England.

Norman Krasna and Groucho Marx fashioned a swift-paced, laugh crammed story for the new star. In it, he plays the role of a wealthy, spendthrift ex-king who falls head over heels in love with an American chorus girl who isn't impressed by royalty. The chorine in this case is Joan Blondell.

Two experts in comedy—Edward Everett Horton and Mary Nash—are the ever-worried relatives of "King Alfred VII," and others in the cast include Alan Mowbray, Luis Alberni and Jane Wyman. Kenny Baker, of radio fame, is the solo singer in the numbers which show the "can can" dance in the gay Folies Bergere in Paris.

Romance, comedy, glamour, music and dancing combine to make a sparkling picture that promises a new value in film entertainment.

ASKS TO BE SENT TO REFORMATORY;
STAGED A HOLD-UP

Jos. McLaughlin, 18, Phila., Pleads Guilty to Stealing Officer's Pistol

IS GIVEN THREE YEARS

Youth Attempted Hold-Up At Wright Service Garage Here

DOYLESTOWN, May 6.—After he requested that he be sent to the Huntingdon Reformatory because he believed that they might do something for him there, Joseph McLaughlin, 18, of Philadelphia, was accommodated yesterday by Judge Calvin S. Boyer in Bucks County criminal court after the defendant had pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing a revolver and attempting a hold-up.

The Court sentenced McLaughlin to three years in Huntingdon and directed that he be turned over to the Philadelphia authorities at once, to start first to serve any sentence they might impose there for the theft of an automobile to which he has confessed in that city.

Huntingdon is not new to McLaughlin. He has already served one year there for stealing a car several years ago, and he also served 13 months in a Catholic reformatory at Spring City, Pa.

McLaughlin pleaded guilty to stealing a revolver from the car of Chief of Police Jones, of Bristol, while the car was parked in that borough. He rode to Bristol from Philadelphia in a stolen automobile taken from the garage of a member of the State Legislature living in that city. Then he stole the pistol, and later held up William J. Murray, Bristol gasoline station attendant on April 1, at 5 a. m.

County Detective Anthony Russo, who arrested McLaughlin, read the young man's confession in court. The defendant asked Murray to "shell out with some money" as he placed the stolen pistol in his stomach.

"I told him that I would not 'shell out' and he said that he would shoot me then," Murray testified. "I said, well you had better shoot for you will get no money," Murray told the Court. "Then McLaughlin shook hands with me and said, 'you have a lot of guts' and then drove off toward Philadelphia. I reported the hold-up to the police and they traced him through the automobile license numbers that I furnished them."

Judge Boyer asked McLaughlin why he acted as he had been acting and the defendant simply replied, "I don't know."

Earl Geison, 32, operator of a tap room at Argus, pleaded guilty yesterday to a violation of the state liquor laws. He told the court that he thought he could buy a tap room business and that the license went with the sale. He said he did not know that he had to apply for a license himself.

Geison, police records showed, has served time in Lehigh county for maintaining a bawdy house. The Court sentenced the defendant to pay a fine of $50 and costs and serve two months in the Bucks County Prison.

One year in the Eastern State Penitentiary was the sentence Judge Boyer imposed on William G. Hiddup, of Trenton, who pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of stealing 177 railroad tie-plats in Morrisville. He sold them to a Trenton junk dealer. The defendant has a police record, having served time in Trenton in 1933 on a similar charge.

Joseph W. Kaine, of Philadelphia, charged with driving while drunk on the Lincoln Highway on April 10, when he stopped a State Highway Patrolman to inquire the way to Trenton, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Boyer. He was sentenced to pay the costs and serve 30 days to one year in the Bucks County Prison.

Charged with uttering a worthless check for $75, John Serrill, 27, formerly of Horsham, Montgomery county, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Boyer. The check was given to William Klapp in 1934 and the defendant has been in jail in another section of the state since that time. The Court suspended sentence on condition that the costs be paid and Klapp be reimbursed in installments of $5 a week, and placed Serrill on probation for one year.

Because young men are preferred for the more strenuous jobs of mass production in factories, there has been a lot of exaggerated discussion of what is to become of the "man over 40." The subject is worthy of study.

Industrial authorities have explained that there are many places in modern industry in which the experience and wisdom and reliability of men of 40 and older are much more valuable. This is worth knowing, but there are many other facts to consider.

Industry has been much in the limelight of late because of labor disputes. But the manufacturing and mechanical industries employ only 15 per cent of our people. And of those working in the factories today only a few intend to make day-labor in the factories their life work.

Youth meetings listen to a lot of discouraging speeches nowadays, with figures of unemployment quoted impressively. The fact is that an alert person probably has more opportunities to get a job now than ever before. Unfortunately there are influences at work which make it easier for the fellow who doesn't want to work much and hasn't much pep or initiative, to make excuses for being idle.

Walter B. Pitkin, who figured out that life begins at 40, has a new book called "Careers After Forty," in which he shows how mature persons may carry out fine programs of usefulness without depending on the will of any boss. All they need is the ability to use the means that are available everywhere and to create their own opportunities.

EARLY MARRIAGE

There is a measure of human wisdom in the opinion expressed by Dr. Nathan W. Winkelman, professor of neuropathology, University of Pennsylvania, that twenty-five is the best age for young people to get married.

Save for certain normal age fluctuations occasioned by prevailing economic conditions and the rather important matter of mutual consent of the parties contemplating the step, twenty-five is the approximate average age for weddings. What the professor stressed, therefore, was not a precise time for marriage, but the desirability of early matings.

Economic conditions rule with a stern hand in early life, and young folks frequently do invite marital disaster by solidly ignoring this important factor in planning for home-building. Perhaps Dr. Winkelman is right in advocating that young brides hold their jobs, if they have any, although perhaps he sticks out his neck for trouble by this offering.

Lessons learned by the young bride in extra-marital employment are invaluable aids to happiness. She obtains a first-hand knowledge of the trials which beset her husband as a provider, and if she loves him as she must, she will not contribute in any way to the folly of a husband working himself to death at fifty and leaving a rich widow to have a swell time spending his dough.

"Rich Girl-Poor Girl" by FAITH BALDWIN

SYNOPSIS

Dr. Jonathan Kimber, a new-comer in the field of medicine, arrives in the little town of Riverport and is welcomed by his late father's friend, Dr. Alan Ballard. "When your father died his community lost its most valuable member," the old physician tells Jonathan.

CHAPTER II

Then he peered at Jonathan from under his bushy brows and asked: "What made you write me about an opening, up here? I would have thought you'd just walk into your father's practice."

"Yes, but I didn't want to. It would have been too easy . . . and too hard. Before I went to Hopkins, Dad took on an assistant. The pace got too much for him, and the town was growing. He wouldn't specialize, and he wouldn't turn away a patient. I felt that if anyone were to take over the practice it must be Keating . . . after all, he'd worked with Dad a long time. When I got back from Vienna we came to a satisfactory arrangement. He is to take over the house, lock, stock and barrel except for some personal things, Dad's books, some furniture which has been in the family a long time. . . . He'll cry on me. I wanted to go somewhere where people didn't know me. Half of Dad's women patients had fed me cookies and spanked me and weren't likely to forget it, either."

"But didn't your father want you to stay on—?"

"No. . . . In the last letter he wrote me he was pretty definite about that. He thought I'd do better to start out for myself. . . . I haven't any ties in the town."

Jonathan said, "barring a couple of second cousins. . . . My mother's people were from Jersey, you know, and most of the Kimbers have moved further out West."

"When your letter came," said Ballard slowly, "it seemed like a solution. I wrote you I was going to California in the fall. But I didn't tell you that I'm going for good. . . ."

Jonathan looked up quickly, his lean dark face intent. "For good?" he repeated incredulously.

"Yep. Intended to die in harness. But Nan—that's my daughter, she's married and living in Pasadena—she's been begging me to come out. She and her husband and the kid were on here, a while ago. I hadn't told her that the old ticker wasn't behaving as well as it might, but as bad luck would have it, I pulled an attack while they were here. So there was nothing to it but promise that I'd retire, in the autumn. They wanted me to go right on back with them, but shucks, I'd some jobs to do—couple of young women I've doctored since they were born who couldn't see their way to having their own babies this summer without the old man standing by. So, sometime along about October, I'll be heading West. Maybe I'll like it," he said wistfully. "I dunno. After Mame died, I suppose I sort of got wrapped up in my practice. Nan was so far away . . . and I was born in this town and my father before me. But they tell me they've got some mighty pretty scenery out in California and a real climate."

Jonathan thought, he's taking it pretty hard, he's a game old chap. His keen, very brown eyes looked directly into the older man's. He asked:

"Suppose people would stand for me here?"

"At first," replied Ballard, "they'll flock to you. Every old hen with a chronic ailment who's doctored with every physician in town, will come a-running to the new young one. Whether you'll keep 'em or not, can't say. You may get the cream, too. Johns Hopkins and Vienna will attract 'em, flies round a honey-pot. I've never had 'em—always been a bit too honest and outspoken for them and they're too rich for my blood. Were you thinking of specializing?"

"Well," said Jonathan, smiling, "I'm supposed to be a surgeon—"

Ballard whistled. "Dick Jameson has the surgery pretty well sewed up here, in more ways than one," he said. "Rather good, too. But he's getting old. Still he doesn't like youngsters."

"I'm not interested in rich patients."

"Oh, yes, you are," said Ballard chuckling, "unless you're crazier than I think you are. However, none of 'em have ever set foot in this office, they run to New York when they have bellyaches, or import a specialist from Syracuse. Mrs. Sutton goes in heavily for the psycho-analysts—suppose you know something about those birds, too?"

"Well, after all," said Jonathan apologetically, "I had a year in Vienna and I attended a good many lectures and clinics."

"May come in handy, at that," mused the old man, "plenty of kinks and crochets up here for you to practice on. Not that I hold much with this business. Half the time all a fool notional woman needs is a baby or a house to clean or a dose of castor oil. Of course, they do get results," he added magnanimously, "when it comes to down-right lunatics."

sticking in their scapels. He makes it tough for them. However, the town can use a new surgeon, there's plenty of people who can't afford Jameson . . . providing you're not aiming to charge fancy prices for hemstitching and cut-work embroidery."

"I'm not," Jonathan assured him, "and I didn't mean I don't want a general medical practice as well. I do. I'm keen on it. I know it isn't customary in these days, especially in the larger cities. But it seems right to me. When I operate on a patient I want to see him through afterwards, not turn him over to someone else. And I like obstetrics, too," he added, "and kids."

"Jack-of-all-trades, eh?" said the older man, "well, you're reverting to type, all right. And you've picked the right town to revert in. But I warn you that you have to walk carefully and not tread on important toes. This is a one-man town."

"Who's the one man?"

"Ex-State Senator Sutton. Made his money in shipping, got in on a pulp-mill merger as well, rich as the devil, even according to city standards. Elects the mayor, man-behind-the-throne stuff, President of the Board of Education, head of the hospital board, all ten fingers in every pie. Owns a couple of islands, winters in Florida, if he's a mind to, summers in Europe if his wife can pry him away. He's retired from business and gets a lot of fun out of bossing the town. He's got one daughter . . . and there's another set of toes you want to keep off of—unless you're a good dancer. She doesn't favor us with much of her company, but when she does things hum around here."

Jonathan laughed. He said, "Guess they won't bother me much."

Elaborate Pageantry To Mark Opening of Frisco's Bridge

tune will greet soundboughs and Eskimos, Indians and cowboys from the Northwest—The Cavemen and Cave-women of Grants Pass, Oregon, will shake hands with Victor McLaglen's Mounted Patrol from Hollywood.

And the Overland Trail will again be peopled with covered wagons, though simulated for the occasion, with Pony Express riders, and miners from Goldfish, Tonopah and the Comstock.

Signifying the international complexion of the event, representatives from several Latin American nations and countries of the interested Pacific area will be present to make San Francisco truly a meeting place of nations. The fiesta program has been mapped by citizens who adopted a historical approach which would depict the kaleidoscopic years preceding the bridge's completion—from the coming of the Spanish padres and Dons, down to the present.

Participation of the United States Navy has been assured by Admiral Arthur J. Hephurn. More than 150 warships, with 70,000 officers and men direct from five weeks' maneuvering in the Pacific, will grace the bay during the eventful week. This will be the largest peace-time naval demonstration ever witnessed in an American port.

An ambitious pageant with a cast of more than 3,000 actors in a newly-constructed amphitheater seating 25,000 persons will nightly tell the romantic story of California's growth.

Each of the seven days will be crowded with parades, festivals, sporting events, and aerobatic shows. The nights will be garbed in illumination shows, fireworks and street shows, with wandering minstrel bands serenading on street corners, in public squares and hotel lobbies.

One of the unique features will be an "International Night," in which each of San Francisco's famous foreign quarters, including Chinatown, will in turn be hosts to the city's visitors and celebrants.

California state dignitaries will assist in dedication of the Waldo approach, main northern artery approaching the bridge from Marin county.

Across the span, ninety feet wide, will be erected two huge golden gates. At a given signal a golden key will be inserted, the gates will swing ajar and fall into the sea. The key itself will be cast into the deep, signifying the idea that the bridge will forever remain open for the commerce of the world.

At that moment, guns will roar from

Fort Baker in the Marin Hills and will be echoed by guns of San Francisco Army Presidio. The United States fleet will swing in from the Pacific Ocean underneath the thronged span.

The air will be filled with zooming aircraft and private yachts and watercraft will dot the bay, as the cavalcades pass in review.

To complete the scene, even the streets of the city will be decorated in the gold and blue of the fiesta. Trolley poles will be transformed into evergreen redwoods, the metal wrapped in bark and branches spreading from the top.

Merchants will vie with one another in the decoration of their stores. Buildings, homes will be illuminated.

On May 27 all citizens and visitors will be permitted to walk across the new span, 220 feet over the strong tides of the Golden Gate channel.

Pedestrian day marks the formal opening of the fiesta, and on that night the pageant will commence, to be presented on three successive nights.

A solemn note will be struck by the ceremony in honor of the men who lost their lives in the building of the bridge. On Sunday afternoon, children of the public schools will cast flowers into the waters from the center of the span. A bronze plaque memorializing the dead will be placed, bearing the names of the lost bridge workmen.

Feminine interests will be satisfied by an extensive fashion show during which the entire shopping districts will be a showplace for comely mannequins exhibiting the latest creation of apparel.

The city which Robert Louis Stevenson called a "smelting pot" because of its mingling of many bloods and peoples, is ready to demonstrate to a visiting world that it knows how to celebrate an important event.

The Golden Gate bridge is the second largest bridge of any kind in the world. Only the San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge exceeds it in length.

Women Plan To Be Early At Cooking School Sessions

An orange fluff pie was included on last evening's list of delicacies, and Miss Ferguson showed how orange juice could be used in lieu of water for the crust.

In commencing her talk, Miss Ferguson reminded localities of the attractiveness of their borough, and told of how much she is enjoying her stay here. Then she continued with helpful suggestions for adding to the joy of home-life through better knowledge of cookery. She again told of her favorite pan-coat, for use in coating pans when cakes or cookies are to be baked, this being composed of one cup of Spry and one-half cup of flour.

Another helpful suggestion came from the lecturer-demonstrator, when after dropping cookie batter from a spoon, she flattened the cookies by means of a piece of cheese-cloth stretched over the mouth of a glass and made secure with a rubber band. The cloth was first dipped in flour, and then pressed on each cookie.

These cooking schools are growing in popularity, and homes are being made happier and brighter, and health more vigorous because of them. Homemakers are given practical suggestions to make their work in their kitchen-laboratories easier, and are aided in giving their husbands and children more healthful meals. The results of Miss Ferguson's 25 years' experience in food fields, are being passed on to the hundreds of fortunate women who are taking advantage of the school which is sponsored by The Bristol Courier, local merchants and food houses.

Remember, only two more nights. Doors open at seven o'clock tonight and tomorrow, with the program starting promptly at eight.

RECIPES YOU WILL WANT TO TRY

Steamed Liver Loaf

With liver graduating right up in the top class of popularity, this novel recipe can be recommended, as a new and different meat loaf. One virtue is that it may be served hot or cold. It should provide eight generous servings.

One pound liver, either beef or pork; one-half pound salt pork, one medium-sized onion, one cup fine corn flake crumbs, one-half cup milk, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, two eggs, beaten, one-fourth teaspoon salt, six sprigs parsley.

Boil liver. Put liver, salt pork, onion and parsley through the food chopper twice. Add the eggs, corn flake crumbs, milk and seasonings. Turn into a greased baking dish. Cover, or tie waxed paper over the top. This should be steamed slowly for about three hours.

Potato Surprises

This recipe is recommended for the bored junior. Children from two to five may have these for a main dinner dish.

Rice, or pound a steamed fillet of sole through a fine sieve. Season with salt, pepper and a little nutmeg. Wet with cream until you can roll it into balls about as big as a walnut.

Have ready some mashed potato seasoned with salt, two tablespoons of butter and 2 tablespoons of cream. Beat until light, cover each ball of fish with mashed potato, pressing it with a fork in any shape you may like. Place in a moderate oven and bake until thoroughly hot. Enough of these may be prepared for servings at two meals, storing half in the icebox for a later baking.

Southern Pecan Cookies

One cup shortening; two tablespoons confectioners sugar; one cup chopped pecans; two cups flour; one teaspoon baking powder; two tablespoons ice water; 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Mix into a dough. Roll thin and cut in tiny round cookies. Sprinkle with sugar and bake on a greased cookie sheet in a moderate oven ten minutes. These cookies, made from a real Southern recipe, are delicious and decidedly "nutty" in flavor.

Party Plum Salad

This requires a number 2½ can green gage plums; and two tablespoons lemon juice; green food coloring; one and one-half tablespoons gelatine; six tablespoons cold water; one-fourth cup mayonnaise; six tablespoons dry cottage cheese; one-fourth cup whipping cream, whipped.

Remove stones from plums and press pulp through a sieve. Add lemon juice and sufficient green food coloring to tint mixture lightly.

Soak one tablespoon of the gelatine in four tablespoons cold water and dissolve over hot water. Add to plum mixture, blend thoroughly and pour into square mold to make a three-fourths to one-inch layer. Chill until almost congealed. Then soak remaining one-half tablespoon gelatine in remaining two tablespoons cold water and dissolve over hot water. Cool slightly. Blend mayonnaise and cottage cheese and add dissolved gelatine mixture. Fold in whipped cream, then spread mixture over partially congealed plum gelatine. Return to refrigerator and chill until firm. This may be molded in individual forms, or in one large mold, in which case it should be cut in cubes and served on crisp lettuce hearts or with watercress. May be made a day in advance, of course.

Castilian Cake

One cup shortening; two cups sugar; four eggs, separated; one-fourth cup cherry juice; one cup milk; four cups flour; four teaspoons baking powder; one-fourth teaspoon salt; one cup maraschino cherries; one cup nut meats.

Cream shortening, add one cup sugar and cream thoroughly. Add well-beaten egg yolks and beat until very smooth. Add the cherry juice and milk alternately with the sifted dry ingredients.

Beat until smooth and add chopped cherries and nuts. Make a meringue of the four egg whites and the remaining cup of sugar. Fold into cake batter. Bake in three nine-inch layer cake pans in moderate oven 350 degrees F. about thirty minutes.

Put together with your favorite icing, which may be colored with a few drops of the cherry juice. Halves of the cherries also may be used between the layers and to decorate the top of this "company" cake.

Strawberry Sherbet

May bring thoughts of delicious, quickly-made ice box desserts. This sherbet fills both requirements.

Two cups cream buttermilk; one cup sugar; juice of one lemon; one pint strawberries, one egg white, unbeaten.

Mash berries, add sugar and strain lemon juice. Mix with buttermilk and freeze to a mush. Remove mixture to a cold bowl, add unbeaten egg white and whip thoroughly. Return to tray and freeze.

FASHION PARADE

By Orry-Kelly

(Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing For International News Service) HOLLYWOOD — (INS) — Although there is fantasy, romance and daring in the gowns for evening, daytime things go right on being casual, comfortable and practical. This fast-moving, businesslike world we live in during the day requires clothes that will stand the gaff, but the leisure hours of evening create another mood. Then the frilly, picturesque feminine things create an illusion of olden days when life moved as slowly and predictably as a waltz.

For practical daytime purposes nothing tops the bolero or Eton-jacketed suit for this time of the year. Light weight wool is the ideal material for it, but when it comes to color selection a girl who has to worry about Old Man Budget has a choice to make. Either she should go in for ensembles of sober hue that can be made gay with colorful accessories or she should be bright about the basic outfit and neutral about accessories.

Spring costuming runs into a lot of money when a girl is neutral neither with ensemble nor accessories because that means she must have a number of each to keep colors from clashing. Olivia de Havilland is a good example for budgeting girls to follow. Although her income as a star is great enough for her to order Parisian gowns haphazardly she sensibly budgets herself and spends no more money on her wardrobe than the average co-ed who depends on father for an allowance.

Since Olivia has a penchant for navy blue she selects this hardy perennial as the basis for her wardrobe each spring and taxes the budget to its limit with the finest accessories. The advantage of colorful accessories is that styles in such things as bags, gloves and scarfs change little from year to year, so that one eventually has a fine collection that can be used season after season to spice neutral ensembles.

The mainstay of Olivia's spring wardrobe is a navy wool crepe skirt with Eton jacket of the same material. On a cool day she may tone it up with a thistle-shaded boxy reefer with gloves, hat and bag to match. Another day she spikes it with red and white, wearing white satin blouse, red jersey cummerbund and red bag. A Roman-striped sash with crownless turban to match has its day. Gloves, pumps and tucked crepe blouse in pearl grey make up a sober trio that give variety.

Carol Hughes, on the other hand, likes riper ensemble shades so that she could really get by with only one set of matched neutral accessories during a season.

By Orry-Kelly

Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing For International News Service HOLLYWOOD — (INS) — Here's a footnote that should be a headline: Feet need never hurt again. Elastic leather has been discovered and perfected. It gives with the foot for complete comfort and opens up marvelous opportunities for new shoe styles. When it comes into general use there will be many shoes made to fit snugly around the ankle with never a button, buckle or lace in sight. Although this new leather bids fair to be one of the sensations of fall it won't be available this spring or summer. However there are plenty of other interesting thoughts in shoes worth contemplation.

Bronze kid is a thrilling thought. Doris Weston wears pumps in this shade in "The Singing Marine" with a beige wool suit. For a rich color bronze is amazing versatile, being ideal for any brown ensemble and yet a perfect foil for powder blue, thistle and floral yellows. It also blends beautifully with the new bronze laces now achieving such fame.

Sandals of red, white and blue kid are London's whim, as the Coronation draws near. Mary Maguire, who received a pair of these from an English friend, finds the color combination ideal for all neutral frocks as well as for white or blue things. A little jeweled crown is pinned on the toe of hers . . . which seems to be the beginning of a new ornamental trend in shoes. Little gem-studded flowers, such as girls have been wearing in their suit lapels from boutonnières would be attractive posed on the toes of simple kid slippers.

An interesting note in footwear is that we are not matching up white sandals with white frocks this season. Instead we are doing as we did with Ann Sheridan in "Lady Luck"—styling white shoes with pastel clothes. White frocks, on the other hand, are being set off either with pastel kids or vividly colored ones.

Sandals, incidentally, have a distinct place in the fashion world, but they are for strictly formal or strictly informal occasions. They are not appropriate for street wear under any circumstances, but are particularly taboo if they are tooless sandals.

Little Patricia Walthall is one of the first girls in Hollywood to take up the wearing of Indian-beaded suede pumps. A grey pair she recently purchased have the toes worked in a gay design made of tiny colored beads.

So . . . before the elastic leather is ready there are plenty of other thrilling shoe styles to gladden a girl's heart.

FOR YOUR GARDEN LIBRARY

What will undoubtedly be a reference book for years to come on the subject of gourds was published this spring under the name "The Garden of Gourds." It is written by H. C. Bailey, the well-known editor of the "Cyclopedia of Horticulture," and is illustrated with full-page ink drawings which cover the field remarkably well. If you are interested in gourds, this book is a necessity. If you want ideas for novel decorations in the garden, it will prove very useful. It should be in the library of every garden club.

"Adventures in Gardening for Boys and Girls," by M. G. Kains, popular garden writer, offers some ideas for keeping the children off the street and working on a useful occupation which mothers should appreciate. Gardening is an ideal hobby for the younger members of the family, for it teaches the love of beauty and the home. And who could think of a better method of getting them interested in eating vegetables?

Miss Louise Mansfield has written "An Artist's Herbal" for the serious gardener, whose interest in herbs takes her beyond the sage, dill, mint and marjoram stage. More correctly, she has drawn such a book, for this new volume is a series of full page drawings, each done so splendidly that you will want to frame them for your garden library. Each drawing, history of each herb. Seventy-six has a page of "cut-lines" which give pages, every other one a gorgeous descriptions, uses and a hint of the picture.

HOLLYWOOD—After several seasons of bleached skins, the movie stars are to go back to the darker tans, believes Jack Dawn, makeup expert at M-G-M.

It will be a case of gentlemen prefer bronze, for Dawn anticipates this tone will dominate the summer makeups.

He has devised a new makeup called bronze flecks which Jean Harlow will wear in "Saratoga", for the first time.

Proper trimming for the new getup, he points out, are red copper tones in the lipstick and copper tones in the nail polish.

The only drawback is that bronze flecks comes off on a gentleman's lapel.

Imported from Hungary for De Mille's "The Buccaneer", Francis Gaal is cramming to pass the test for her first naturalization papers. Olympe Bradna, another Paramount actress, will take them out just as she is 18.

The fiction of the French Foreign Legion being a hiding place for men with a past boomeranged on Warners' technical expert for "The Life of Zola", Louis Van Der Necker, when he applied for his first papers.

Van Der Necker, born in Belgium and naturalized Frenchman, told a clerk in the local naturalization office he was an officer in the Foreign Legion. "What crime did you commit?" Van Der Necker swears the clerk said. "I'm not sure you'd make a good citizen."

Honor of having the smallest foot in Hollywood has lately been ceded to Lily Pons, who wears a one triple A. But Armda's order to the R-K-O wardrobe department for her role in "Mexican Quarters" called for a straight size one shoe. They had to wire New York to have a pair made specially and airmailed back.

A soldiers' revolt scene in "The Road Back" called for Andy Devine to roughhouse with some extras. After a rehearsal with the six feet two, 245-pound ex-grinder star they went on a sit-down. So Andy phoned for his

PLAN VILLAGE FARM'S FIRST ANNUAL SHOW

LANGHORNE, May 6—The first annual horse show to be staged at The Village Farm, near here, will take place on Sunday, May 30th, according to an announcement made by Major Edward B. Allen, director of the affair.

This show will follow the program of the Penn-Jersey Light Harness Racing Circuit, which will occur on Friday and Saturday, May 28th and 29th, and will precede the closing events of the circuit scheduled for May 31st.

Twenty-five classes are on the program released by Major Allen, which should attract many of the leading hunters, jumpers, gaited saddle horses, fine harness horses and junior class contestants. Entries for the show close Monday, May 17, at the Village Farm.

Gage B. Ellis, owner of the Village Farm, is president of the horse show, with Major Allen as director, and Norman L. Marshall, of Trenton, secretary.

The honorary horse show committee consists of Mrs. Edward B. Allen, Flemington, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Brooks, North Wales, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Ellis, III, Lansdowne, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. John de Z. Hamilton, Southampton, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kinder, Langhorne, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Royal Little, Providence, R. I.; Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Peckham, Germantown, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Porter, Langhorne, Pa.; Dr. and Mrs. John N. Robinson, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Smith, Newtown, Pa.; Mrs. George K. Large, Flemington, N. J.; Mrs. Horace Mann, Trenton; Hubert Latham, Providence, R. I.; and Jack Spencer, Trenton.

Four judges have thus far been invited—Clifford Brumfield, Ivyland, Pa.; Joseph Serrill, Newtown Square, Pa.; R. C. Heather, New York City; and Steve G. Phillips, Xenia, O. Phillips will act as starter for the Penn-Jersey meeting at the Village Farm. He is widely known as the starter of the famed Hambletonian Stake, most noted of all light harness racing events.

Dr. William Ivins, Philadelphia, and Dr. W. A. Haines will be the veterinarians, with Roland Baker, of Philadelphia, the ringmaster.

The entry list includes six classes for hunters and jumpers, nine for three-gaited saddle horses; four for five-gaited saddle horses; two junior classes; a chair ride, an event for trotters and pacers entered in the P-J races at the Village Farm meeting in which they must be shown in harness or cart; and a class for standard-bred brood mare with foal at foot.

The beautiful Augusta Willoughby

Little Challenge Trophy, to be competed for by five-gaited saddle horses placing first or second in three specified classes, will be the feature prize of the show. These three classes are for novice five-gaited saddle horses, to be shown in hand; five-gaited mares over 142 hands, and five-gaited stallions or geldings over 142.

The horse show will start at 10 a. m., May 30, while the harness racing each day will commence at two p. m.—all times being daylight saving.

A total of $5,000 in purses and trophies for the harness races have attracted over 225 standard-breds with many of the country's leading drivers. Other meetings of the P-J circuit will be held at Trenton Fair Grounds and Flemington Fair Grounds.

Reopen Taylor Murder Case

Los Angeles, May 6—The 16-year-old unsolved murder of William Desmond Taylor, director of silent picture days, was suddenly re-opened here today by investigators for the district attorney's office.

The officers said they had obtained new evidence from two diaries kept by Mary Miles Minter, former screen star and fiancée of Taylor. Subpoenas calling for them to testify before the Grand Jury here were issued for Miss Minter, her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, and her sister, Mrs. Margaret Fillmore.

Claim Rates "Unjust"

Harrisburg, May 6—In a precedent-shattering move, the Public Utilities Commission today sent out formal notices to 104 gas companies in Pennsylvania, charging their rates were "unjust and unreasonable."

The companies, located in about 30 towns, serve 750,000 customers.

The companies were ordered to file their answer by June 1, so that a date for hearings could be fixed. It is the first investigation of its kind ever undertaken.

Woman Doctor Ends Life

New York, May 6—Despairing she would never again pick up the brilliant medical career which was halted when she was cast out of Germany, Dr. Emma Lublinsky, a handsome blonde of 36, plunged to her death today from the fourth floor of a women's club.

She left two notes—one to her new-found friends in New York, thanking them for befriending and helping her. The other was addressed to her husband, an architect, who was also thrown out of Germany by the Nazis, and who is now in France trying to establish himself there.

In Berlin, Dr. Lublinsky had headed a well-known clinic for the treatment of women's and children's diseases, and was regarded as a specialist in her field.

Firemen Injured

Jenkintown, May 6—James Martin, 25, and Michael McCowin, 42, volunteer members of the Jenkintown Fire Department, were injured today when fire damaged the rear of the home of William Barson.

Barson, his wife Jane, and their three-year-old daughter Beth, were driven to the streets in their night clothing. The family moved here from New York only a week ago.

Fire Burns Scow's Interior

Philadelphia, May 6—Fire of undetermined origin today burned out the interior of a scuttle scow on the beach of the Delaware River, near the House of Correction, at Torresdale. The barge, abandoned by the Department of Wharves, Docks and Ferries, has been used by swimmers and fishermen for the past eight years.

Car Overtakes; Six Hurt

Upper Darby, May 6—Six persons were injured today when their automobile overturned twice, after it collided with a Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company bus near here early today. Passengers on the bus were shaken up but escaped injury. Rita Muller, 29, of Philadelphia, received a fractured skull, and Catherine McCauley, 18, also of Philadelphia, a possible broken back. The other four occupants of the passenger car escaped with minor injuries.

Lloyd Estate Three Million

Media, May 6—The late Horatio D. Lloyd, a partner in the firm of J. P. Morgan & Company, left an estate valued at $3,368,339, an inventory filed here today disclosed. Lloyd died at his home in Haverford, last January 21st.

Granzow Academy Prepares For Recital On May 28th

About the busiest place in Bucks county today is the Granzow Dancing Academy where finishing touches are being put to various dances, and costumes, for the second annual recital, Friday, May 28th.

For the past eight weeks two dress-makers have been busy in order to have the 400 costumes ready in time.

These recitals are 100% local, both in talent and labor, so as to keep as much business as possible at home. Everything for use in this recital has been made by people of Bristol and Croydon.

The talent found in the community is far above average and there can be no question some of these children will eventually make the grade on Broadway or Hollywood. These children have worked very hard for the past year and this recital is their night in which they can show their many friends just what they have accomplished. "And they have good reason to feel proud of their accomplishments," states one who has seen rehearsals. "They are producing a recital this year second to none, either in dance technique, extravagant costumes, or stage setting."

The Granzow Sisters feel the children this year have developed to such an extent that they should have their recital this year in the Grand Theatre, where they can display their talent to best advantage, as the costumes are very elaborate. The Misses Granzow feel they would not be doing justice to their charges if this recital was held anywhere but in the Grand Theatre. They promise to produce a recital this year "better than anything ever seen in Bristol before."

RECIPES DEMONSTRATED AT THE COURIER COOKING SCHOOL

Following are the recipes demonstrated at the Courier cooking school held in the Bristol M. E. Church lecture room on Tuesday evening:

Queen Pudding

- 2 eggs
- 4 cups milk
- 6 slices stale bread
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Nutmeg
- Jelly

Spread the bread with butter. Lay it in a baking dish in whole slices, or dice it. Separate the eggs. Beat the egg yolks and add the milk, sugar, salt and nutmeg. Stir until the sugar dissolves. Pour this over the bread. Bake at 350 degrees F. until nicely set. When cool spread jelly over the top. Make a meringue of the whites. Put this over the top and brown delicately in the oven.

Stuffed Pork Chops

- 6 pork chops, 1 inch thick
- 3/4 bread crumbs
- 3-4 cup cooked chopped macaroni
- 1 tablespoon onion
- Salt and Pepper
- Savory seasoning

Make a dressing of the last five ingredients. Split the chops. Fill the chops with the dressing. Skewer them if necessary. Dredge the chops with seasoned flour. Put them in a roasting pan. Nearly cover with a mixture of half water and half milk. Bake for 1 hour at 350 degrees F.

Lemon Tea Biscuits

- 2 cups flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Sugar lumps
- 5 tablespoons shortening
- 2-3 cup milk or more
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- Lemon juice

Measure the flour, salt, sugar and baking powder into the sifter. Sift together three times. Cut in the shortening until the mixture looks mealy. Add the milk gradually until all is blended. Turn out on a slightly floured board. Roll out one inch thick. Cut into biscuits. Into each biscuit press a sugar lump. Soak the lump with lemon juice. Bake at 350 degrees F. until nicely browned. When done split and spread while hot, with a mixture of butter, sugar and lemon juice.

Tasty French Dressing

- 1 cup salad oil
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 2-3 cup vinegar
- 1/2 teaspoon mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 slice onion
- 1 can tomato soup
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce

Put all the ingredients into a glass jar. Cover tightly and shake well. Remove the onion next morning. Keep in a cool place. Shake always before using.

Pastry

- 1 1/4 cups flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 3 tablespoons cold water

Measure and sift the flour and salt together. Cut in the shortening. Mix in the water gradually with a fork. Then add just enough more water to hold the particles together. Roll out and put in pie shell.

Pan-Fried Onions

- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 4 sliced onions
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper

Melt the shortening in the frying pan. Add the onions, water, salt and pepper. Cover and cook slowly till the water evaporates. Increase the heat and saute until golden brown.

Devilled Oysters

- 1/2 cup salad oil
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon horseradish
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 24 oysters
- 2 eggs

Fine bread or cracker crumbs. Combine the oil, salt, paprika, lemon juice, horseradish and Worcestershire sauce, pour this dressing over the oysters and let stand one hour. Drain the oysters and wipe them dry. Roll them in seasoned flour, dip in egg and then in seasoned crumbs. Shallow fry at 385 degrees F. until golden brown. Drain and serve immediately.

Marshmallow Goodies

Spread crackers lightly with butter. Place a marshmallow on each. Toast in the oven until delicately browned. Serve hot as possible.

Banana Layer Cake

- 1-3 cup shortening
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 egg
- 1 3/4 cups sifted flour
- 2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 3/4 cup milk
- 2 large bananas

Combine shortening, salt and vanilla. Add sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat thoroughly. Sift, measure flour. Resift with baking powder, and add all at one time to the creamed mixture. Do not mix until you add all of the milk. Beat only until batter looks creamy. Then stop mixing. Pour batter into two greased 8-inch layer cake pans. Bake in moderately hot oven 375 degrees F. 20-25 minutes. Spread Banana Frosting on one layer and arrange cut bananas on top. Place second layer on top and spread remaining frosting on top and sides of cake. This cake may also be baked in cup cake pans in moderately hot oven 375 degrees F. for 20-25 minutes. Try it also as a cottage pudding with any fruit sauce.

Orange Mint Punch

- 2 cups sugar
- 2 cups water
- 2 oranges
- 4 lemons
- 1 quart water
- 1 bottle ginger ale
- 6 sprays mint
- Crushed ice

Boil the sugar and 2 cups water to a syrup. Pour this over the mint. When cold add the fruit juices and one quart water. Just before serving add the ginger ale and ice.

Cottage Cheese Pie

- 1 cup milk
- 2 cups cottage cheese
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 tablespoon butter, melted
- Nutmeg

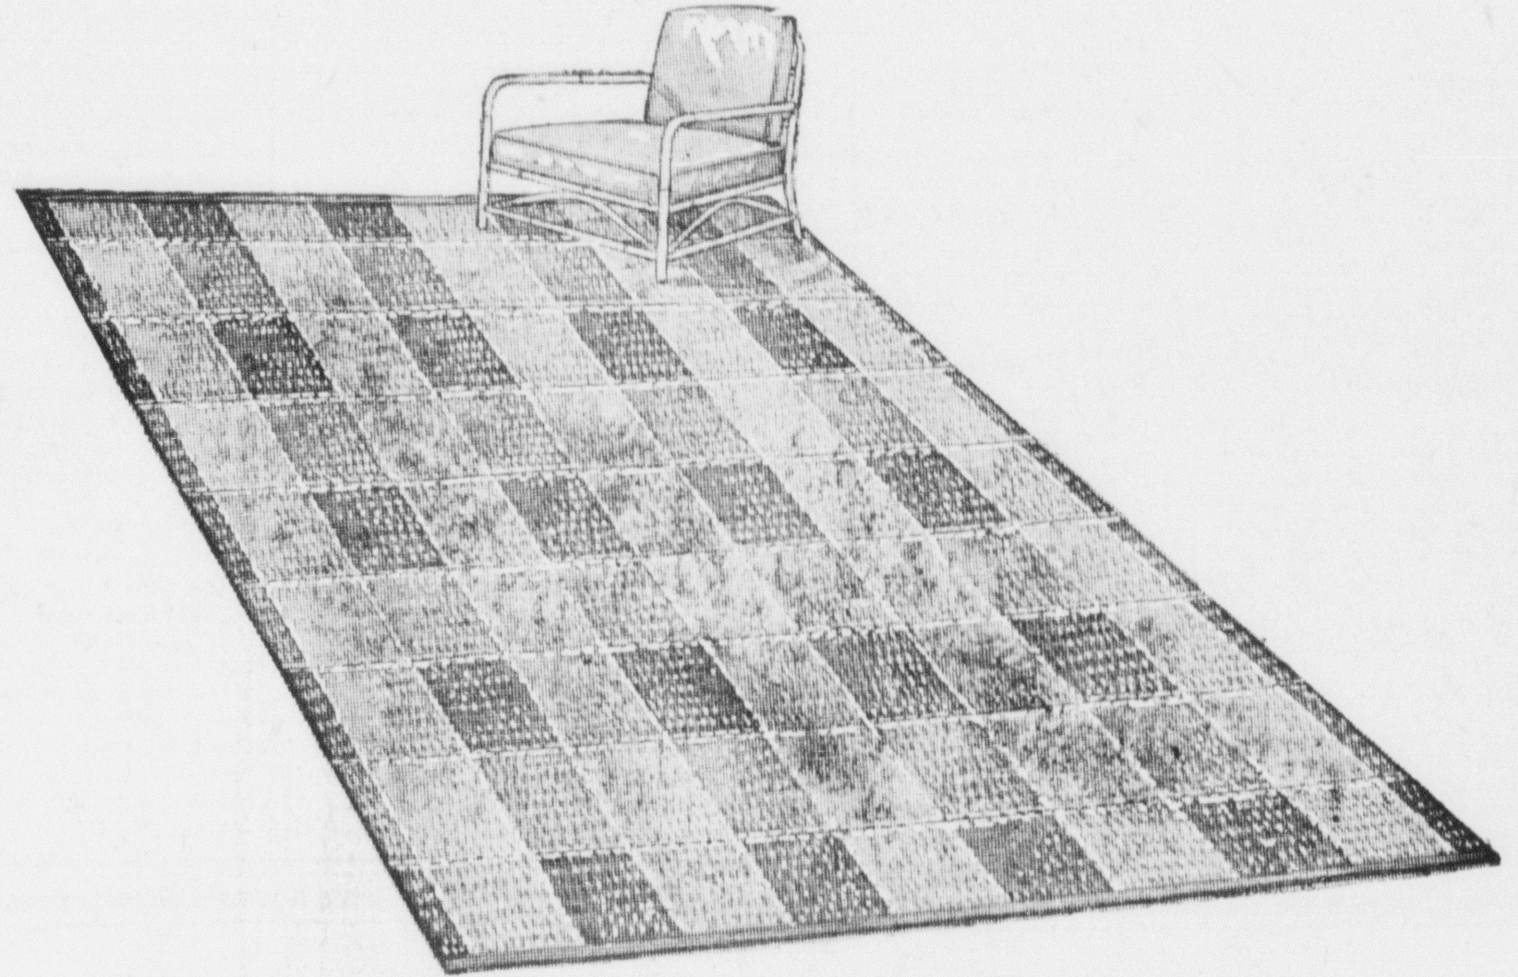

Mash the cheese through a sieve. Beat the eggs and sugar into the cheese. Add the milk, vanilla, salt and butter. Pour into the crust. Grate nutmeg over the top. Bake at 450 degrees F. until the edge is set, then at 325 degrees F. until firm. Test with a knife.

SKILLED HOME ECONOMISTS ARE HEROINES IN CALAMITY

Home Economists were among the unsung heroines in the flood disaster early this year in the Middle West. Expert authorities on food joined with untrained volunteers in working efficiently to handle food supplies in stricken cities overwhelmed by the disaster. When the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers went on a rampage, all food in the stricken section was commandeered, but it required more than martial law to handle and administer that supply. Home Economists who happened to be lecturing in any section of the flood zone joined their skilled forces with the dieticians of hospitals, where the staffs were faced with the staggering necessity of caring for 10 and 20 times the number of patients normally handled.

Specialized training, experience and ability all combined to fit these women to meet the emergency. Many of them served day and night, almost without rest.

The dietician in one Kentucky hospital, with the help of two other women, provided for 2,500 additional patients, besides the regular patients, transients and rescue workers. It was these trained workers who saw that every drop of water used in the hospital for operations, drinking, bathing and even dishwashing was boiled.

A Home Economist, who had just completed a series of demonstrations in Louisville set up a Canteen Service, and furnished soup and bread on a 48-hour schedule for the motorboat rescue squad, ambulance drivers and the bedraggled refugees.

Few papers mentioned these heroic volunteers and the women themselves sought no laurels. It was just another job.

USEFUL HINTS OF KNOWLEDGE

Cabbaging Fame

Did you know—that Joseph Herge-sheimer broke into print with a recipe for stuffed cabbage, which he sold to Good Housekeeping under his wife's by-line?

Saving Space

The ultimate in space-saving seems to have been reached in the combination buffet and dining table brought out this year. When closed, the piece is simply a handsome modern buffet of pin-striped walnut. But pull down the front knob and a cupboard drawer opens, disclosing a full-sized dining table, neatly stored away in folding leaves.

Useful Vinegar

Wise motorists are learning to keep a bottle of vinegar in their car, just in case the windshield wiper goes on strike. Vinegar poured over the outside of the windshield from the top will keep the glass clear even in a heavy storm.

Handy Parsley

Parsley does double duty as a fla-

voring. The busy cook who is about to become hostess, or play bridge, should rub chopped parsley well into the fingers. It will remove all traces of such strong odors as onions or garlic. If no parsley is available, make a paste of baking soda and water and rub the hands.

Watch Spices

Keep the lids on your spice jars tightly closed. Test tops after using, and make sure that they have not been carelessly placed. Air tends to make spices lose their flavor.

WHAT IS THIS THING CALLED 'FELL'? IS ASKED

What is this thing called "Fell"? That is the question!

Brides and experienced food shoppers, too, often have been put on the spot by the meat dealer's casual question, after the roast lamb is ordered: "Shall I remove the fell?"

The "fell" refers to the thin, paper-like covering over lamb, and economists maintain that there is no reason for removing it from a leg of lamb. Formerly, some cooks maintained that this covering imparted a strong flavor to the meat, but that belief has gone the way of many food fallacies.

Actually, it is wise to leave the fell on a leg of lamb, since the roast does keep its shape better and seems to cook more quickly, as though this skin provided a double roasting covering. Therefore, if the butcher does inquire about the fell, tell him to leave it on.

A shoulder roast of lamb is another thing again. The fell usually is removed from this cut, since in cooking, it contracts and has a tendency to pull the roast out of shape.

Lamb chops present still another problem. The long cooking of a roast transforms the fell into a tender, crisp delicacy. However, the fell will not become tender enough to be palatable at the end of the brief cooking period allowed the chops. The butcher does usually remove the fell before cutting the chops, or he may strip it off in trimming them, in one "fell" swoop.

Turkeys, ducks, roasting chickens and broilers all are good bargains on the market. Veal also is considered a good buy among meats. Prices are on a parity with last year's, and seem inclined to stay at their present level, or go even lower.

If none of these main dishes seem to solve the problem of that special dinner party, why not order a French leg of lamb? This is a regular leg of lamb, with the meat removed from the shank end of the leg bone, a distance of three or four inches. A gay paper frill over the bone provides a handle which makes carving the roast a pleasure for any husband.

There are many clever ways of varying the flavor of your special roast. Many butchers are learning to stock fresh mint for convenience. The leaves should be stripped from the stalks and minced almost to a pulp for the savory sauce. When this sauce is ready, with vinegar, salt a trace of sugar, or the preferred seasonings, try basting the lamb roast with the mint sauce to impart a very delicate flavor.

Another expert cook suggests glazing the outside of the roast with tart currant jelly. Basting the leg of lamb with lemon juice may add a distinctive taste. Or cover the roast with lemon slices, secured with toothpicks. For that extra brown, crusty roast, rub well with olive oil. If your family favors a whiff of garlic, use that by all means, but use it sparingly, for it easily overpowers the delicate taste of lamb. One method of using garlic in roast lamb is to insert a small clove of garlic in the leg joint. Be sure to remove the clove before the roast goes to the table. It is even safer to rub the roasting pan, or the lamb itself with a bruised clove of garlic before the meat goes in the oven. Rub a sifting of flour and seasonings well into the meat, too.

The Frenched leg of lamb also requires the fell, for the thin, paper-like covering helps to keep the roast in shape, after some of its support has been removed.

The Frenched leg of lamb should be prepared precisely like any other lamb roast. After the meat has been seasoned, place it skin side down on a rack in an open roasting pan. Many cooks favor placing it in the oven without a cover and without water, keeping the oven at a moderate temperature to avoid drying and over-browning.

If this method is used, keep the temperature close to 300 degrees F., allowing about 30 minutes for each pound for cooking. Or the roast may be browned quickly, and then covered tightly to conserve the juices.

Carving is a joy with the Frenched leg of lamb. Have the platter warmed and place the roast cut side up, standing the platter in front of the carver so that the shank end of the leg is to the left of the carver. The carver should cut the slices at right angles to the bone, holding the convenient frilled handle in his left hand, while he manipulates the carving knife.

shape, after some of its support has been removed.

The Frenched leg of lamb should be prepared precisely like any other lamb roast. After the meat has been seasoned, place it skin side down on a rack in an open roasting pan. Many cooks favor placing it in the oven without a cover and without water, keeping the oven at a moderate temperature to avoid drying and over-browning.

If this method is used, keep the temperature close to 300 degrees F., allowing about 30 minutes for each pound for cooking. Or the roast may be browned quickly, and then covered tightly to conserve the juices.

Carving is a joy with the Frenched leg of lamb. Have the platter warmed and place the roast cut side up, standing the platter in front of the carver so that the shank end of the leg is to the left of the carver. The carver should cut the slices at right angles to the bone, holding the convenient frilled handle in his left hand, while he manipulates the carving knife.

The cookery expert may quickly fashion her own decorative frill for the Frenched leg, if one is not available in the market. It is a good hint to remember, for the roast on July 4th might wear a red, white and blue dress, with a green decoration on St. Patrick's Day, and so on.

Choose the desired color in paper, taking a letter-size sheet. Double the paper in half and cut parallel gashes from the folded edge at right angles to the fold. This has the double advantage of convenience and cleanliness for the carver, as well as dressing up the meat course.

Make sure of your mint sauce by ordering mint when you place the lamb order.

WESLEYAN SENIORS PREFER TEACHING

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. — (INS) — Teaching remains the preferred employment of Wesleyan university seniors, a recent vocational guidance survey showed.

Twenty-three will seek such employment while 22 would like to enter brokerage business. Eleven plan to study law, 10 medicine and eight seek careers in journalism.

DOUBLE PRECAUTION

PORTLAND, Ore. — (INS) — D. W. Bowes, an insurance agent, had a paper sack that was worth $6,869. He sold an insurance policy and was paid cash by the buyer, an elderly woman, who brought out a small mountain of crumpled paper bills and silver coin from caches in her home. Bowes dug up an old paper sack and carried the money in it to his office as a measure of precaution against holdup men.

BRUSSELS — Belgium, not as large as the State of Maryland, claims to be the pocket edition of Europe. Within its less than 12,000 square miles can be seen famous battlefields, ancient churches, castles, medieval houses, spas, vast forests, coast resorts, and pageants all through the year.

by two boys brought death to Furman B. Jones. If this had happened to you, would you be prepared with insurance? Would you be in a position to write a letter like the following?

"Your promptness in settling the death claim of my husband, Furman B. Jones, has moved me to write this letter.

He was insured in your company on January 11, 1937, under policy No. 687546.

On Thursday, April 1, 1937, he was attacked by two strange men while he was working at his place of employment—a garage in the center of the city. He was robbed and brutally murdered by the two assailants, who were later captured by the police.

Today I called at your office and was handed a check for $250 in full settlement of this claim.

I thank you for your courtesy and fair treatment while I was at your office.

Very truly yours,

LABOR HELD THE NEWS SPOTLIGHT IN MONTH OF APRIL; AMERICANS PRACTICALLY FORGOT ABOUT EUROPE, IN MIDST OF INDUSTRIAL THREATS

By International News Service

Labor held the news spotlight in April. Never before in history has labor provided such a fount of news.

With the major industries threatened and strike-torn, Americans practically forgot about Europe and focused their attention on the biggest show of the month... the tri-cornered battle between John L. Lewis, militant CIO head... the captains of industry... and William Green, American Federation of Labor spokesman.

The beginning of the month found Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan working day and night trying to effect a settlement of the Chrysler strike. The governor finally brought Lewis and the auto heads together in his Lansing office.

There followed days of conferences between Lewis and Walter P. Chrysler.

And when things looked darkest, Gov. Murphy summoned reporters and quietly declared:

"Everything's been settled."

Then with quick dispatch, Governor Murphy brought the Reo and Hudson automobile strikes to an end... and Michigan's industrial wheels began turning again.

The new spotlight swung Eastward as 400,000 miners in the soft coal industry threw down their tools and refused to work when mine operators failed to agree on the new terms in the working contracts. Lewis announced a settlement the next day and the miners returned to work.

Meanwhile a new wave of "sit-down" strikes swept the country. Most serious of the outbreaks was a riot at the Hershey Chocolate Plant at Hershey, Pa., where a force of Pennsylvania farmers ousted 500 sit-down strikers, and clubbed union leaders. Settlement was made when employees agreed to ballot for or against the CIO. The latter was defeated in the balloting.

Police and tear gas routed 150 strikers from the Yale and Towne plant in Detroit, while nine members of a rival union were shot in Calena, Kan., when zinc and lead miners staged a demonstration. A similar riot occurred in the canning industry at Stockton, Cal.

The end of the month found the steel-helmeted men of Maine's National Guard taking over the Lewiston-Auburn shoe strike area.

Shipping was twice brought to a standstill. First a CIO radio union bottled up the International Mercantile Marine charging "scabs" were being employed. Second the International Longshoremen's Union called a general strike against the Cunard and Furness lines, an AFL unit, demanding recognition in Montreal. The issue was settled peacefully, the AFL emerging victorious over the CIO.

Meanwhile at Washington, debate after debate moved in the Senate, and finally a move to have sit-downs declared illegal was squelched.

The crowning climax to the "labor month" came when the Supreme Court validated the Wagner Act, giving organized labor its greatest judicial victory.

Although it looked pretty much like the rainy-month was an "All Lewis show," the CIO director was handed his set-backs.

A strike at the Canadian plant of General Motors at Oshawa was settled through negotiations with the local Canadian Union. American leaders of the CIO were specifically barred by Premier Mitchell Hepburn who refused to deal with "paid foreign agitators."

The war in Spain moved on unabated as General Franco's rebel forces bombarded their way towards the Basque capital, Bilbao, in the north.

Most shocking news was that imparted by Franco to International News Service in an exclusive interview when he estimated the war dead at 500,000!

Three days after a British warning to Franco to leave Spanish shipping alone, rebel planes dropped bombs in the vicinity of the H. M. S. Gallant. The foreign office quickly sent the destroyer Garland to the scene and the rebel-leader promised it wouldn't happen again.

A British privately-owned food ship successfully ran the insurgent blockade around Bilbao as thousands of hungry Loyalists cheered. A British destroyer, at anchor several miles out, refused to lend aid to the merchantman, warning "enter at your own risk." Later, additional British food ships made Bilbao port safely.

In London, preparations were under way for the world's most colorful event—the coronation on May 12.

King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth ran through their "lessons" in the routine of coronation service, while America's ambassador Gerard agreed to wear "silk pants" to the crowning—as did J. P. Morgan, who said he had no intention of "going in his nightgown."

Here, There and Everywhere

wild month chasing down clues in quest of the slayer of a beautiful model, her mother, and a border... at Moscow the Soviet Government ordered a 20 per cent increase in the total production of all foodstuffs and consumer goods... at Havana the Havana University resumed operations after four years of educational paralysis... in India, the new constitution granting semi-home rule for 11 legislative provinces went into effect... at Rome Pope Pius made his first public appearance since falling ill and delivered a tirade against Communism... at Washington, President Roosevelt sounded the wishes of the nation by declaring he hoped no additional taxes would be necessary... at Topeka, Kan., John Hamilton's wife began divorce proceedings against the National Republican Chairman... at Wilmington, Del., Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation was restrained from "sacking" a couple of minority stockholders who demanded 75-year-old

Charles M. Schwab retire... at Honolulu, 12 navy flying boats safely landed with 78 men after flying in mass formation from San Diego... at Duck Hill, Miss., two negroes who had been accused of murdering a white man were lynched... at Trenton, N. J., John Quinn, United States District Attorney, won his battle to bring the sleuthing Ellis R. Parkers to trial after he was backed up in his fight by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings... at New York the mystic cult of Father Divine, the man who calls himself "God" was disrupted when police seized the Messiah as the outgrowth of a stabbing and riot in one of his "heavens"... at Washington, President Roosevelt's suggestion for the revision of the Supreme Court brought a wave of opinion pro and con, with the D. A. R. voting not to support... at Berlin, Hitler celebrated his 48th birthday by dragging out his powerful military machines on parade... along the Spanish frontier, 27 nations began a patrol for the purpose of preventing intervention... at Mexico City, the trial of Leon Trotsky to determine his guilt or innocence of Soviet sabotage charges was labeled a "fiasco" by Carlton Beals, member of the investigating commission.

GREETING SPRING WITH VARIETY

Chicken Baked in Milk

Broiled chicken, fried chicken, fricassee chicken, chicken with dumplings. Spring is just the time to try chicken baked in milk.

Cut chicken into portions, sprinkle with a mixture of salt, pepper and flour. Saute in shortening, or chicken fat until browned. Put into baking pan and sprinkle lightly with flour. Cover with liquid, using all milk, or half milk and half stock.

Cover and bake in slow oven until nearly done. Remove cover during the last half hour of cooking to brown. If the sauce separates, drain off and beat with a rotary beater to restore smoothness. Chopped parsley may be added, or a few chopped chives for variety.

Fruit Gingerbread

This recipe is useful when guests are anticipated, since it may be stored in the refrigerator until ready for use.

Cream three-fourths cup shortening and one cup light brown sugar. Sift together three cups flour, one-half teaspoon baking soda, one teaspoon baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt and one teaspoon each ginger and cinnamon. Add to first mixture and store in ice-box until ready for use. At baking time, remove mix from icebox and break up with a fork. Beat two eggs thoroughly and to them add one cup sour milk and three-fourths cup molasses. Add liquid mixture gradually to dry ingredients, beating constantly. Blend well. This mix may be baked in this form, to serve with whipped cream, or place two and one-half cups drained fruit, such as peaches or apricots in the bottom of well-greased square cake tin, and pour the gingerbread batter over fruit. Bake in moderate oven 45 minutes. Slide out as upsidown cake. Serve with plain or whipped cream.

Tomato Dinner Ice

This is excellent for variety and for its appetizing appeal with a substantial dinner. The luncheon hostess also will snap it up as a new idea, since it forms a good partnership with any meat course.

Four cups tomato juice, two tablespoon minced celery, two tablespoons finely-minced parsley, one tablespoon sugar, two teaspoons salt, one-half teaspoon white pepper, two tablespoons lemon juice.

Stir all ingredients together and turn into tray of mechanical refrigerator, stirring frequently while freezing. When partly frozen, put into a cold bowl and beat with a rotary beater, or use electrical mixer if you have one. Return to refrigerator until time to serve.

Holland Tomatoes

Six tomatoes, salt, pepper, one-fourth cup minced bacon, fine bread crumbs, six slices bread, chopped boiled ham, prepared mustard. Cut tomatoes in halves. Sprinkle cut sides with salt, pepper, minced bacon and bread crumbs. Place tomatoes in a greased pan and bake in hot oven 425 degrees F. until tender. Toast the bread and spread with ham and mustard mixed together. Place a half of tomato on each slice and serve at once.

Cheese-Orange Spread

If your husband doesn't like whipped cream on his gingerbread, try this grand "icing": Combine one package cream cheese, with grated rind of one orange and two teaspoons powdered sugar. Cream well and add one and one-half tablespoons orange juice. Also delicious for cup cakes.

COTTON CLOTHES MAKE APPEARANCE FOR ALL FUNCTIONS

By Miss Edna Stephany

(Home Economics Representative) Cottons go practically anywhere that silk crepes can go these days and so when warm weather comes there is nothing quite so satisfactory as the frocks that take to the wash tub and emerge looking fresh, crisp and new. Pay enough for your new cottons and linens to guarantee them being color fast, pre-shrunk, and having the latest improvement—a permanent finish. This means they are treated to lessen their wrinkling.

The terms, Sanforized, Bellmanized, Vitalized, and Vat dyed, refer to finishing processes. Ask your salespersons the meaning of them. Cotton garments are exposed to sunlight and repeated washings and so should be colored with dyes fast to both. Vat dyes give the most satisfactory color fastness.

For the tailored dress there are tweed-like linens or cottons, pique, everfast suiting, and plain linen.

Dimities, talcum powder, muslin, powder puff, muslin, fine voile, and dotted Swiss make dainty dresses for warm afternoons. Cotton lace is more popular than ever and is a good choice for either the street length, afternoon or the evening ensemble.

For evening dresses there are new organdies which are much more interesting than the plain organdy we have known so long and still like so much. One of these is a fine seersucker finish in a leaf design, another is a self color print—for example, a white leafy design on white organdy. A very fine voile is made from Pima cotton which is a variety of long staple cotton grown in one of the south-western states.

Large prints on linen, as well as the plain colors, are popular for the contrasting jackets you will want, and they will be equally appropriate for the linen, wool, or silk dress, provided the color combination is pleasing.

MISSING LICENSE PLATES

KELSO, Wash.—(INS)—Somewhere in the state of Washington is a man with a car which has no 1937 license plates. The county auditor here reported the man bought the "slightly used" machine for $7.50, and then refused to buy license plates when he found they would cost him almost as much as the car—seven dollars. A new ruling would have forced him to pay $1.25 for each of three times the car was transferred in 1936, plus the regular $3.25 license fee.

MOOSE ON THE LOOSE

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—(INS)—A big bull moose, roaming the area near Greenwater Pond in East Lee, was sighted by several motorists recently. The moose passed between two automobiles, climbed a steep embankment, made its way over a wire fence, and browsed in a nearby lot.

HIGH SCHOOL J. V. TEAM KEEPS AT TOP OF LEAGUE

By Heru Corn
(H. S. Press Representative)

The Bristol High School J. V. team maintained the top seat in the Junior High School League standing when the McGuire tutored lads found themselves holding the longer end of a 10-4 score as they defeated the cellar-dwelling Trevoise nine.

Hank Russo, local hurler, out-pitched Ray Despo, to be given by the umpire the verdict—a victory. Russo allowed but two hits and fanned seven, while his mates touched Despo, who blanked the Bristol boys in the first two cantos, for six clouts.

In the start of the fifth the home-townners were leading by the score of 4 to 1. When Russo betook himself to the batterfront, he saw what was almost to be his Waterloo. He started out fine but when his opponent, fire finger, Despo, came to the plate the trouble began. The latter hit a bounding single in right field. And Russo having gone through five tense innings was completely shattered and was removed from the game after two runs had crossed the home plate.

He was replaced by Carl Leinheiser, varsity twirler, who came into the game with the bases full and pulled the game out of the red. He finished the game, during which only one run came in and this by virtue of an error.

OWLS GET SET-BACK AT NEWTOWN; SCORE, 16-3

By Bob MacFarland
(Bensalem Press Representative)

The Bensalem Owls journeyed to Newtown Tuesday and received a 16-3 setback in a league tilt. The constant and timely hitting of the Newtown team enabled it to hold the lead throughout the game. Bensalem collected 8 hits and Newtown socked out 13 safe bingles. Probably the best hit of the game came in the seventh inning when MacKenzie pinch-hitting for Cahill, drove out a long triple into center field.

Joe Cahill, the Bensalem hurler for the entire game, set down 5 batters on strike-outs and walked 4. Newtown hurlers, Janney and Gray, struck out 5 and passed 2.

ODD FELLOWS' NINE TO OPEN SEASON MAY 10

According to Bobby Sutton, manager, the Odd Fellows baseball team intends to present a very formidable lineup to the followers of the Bristol Twilight League. The circuit will open its season May 10th.

Sutton has quite an array of colorful players in his lineup. For catching duty he is banking on Joe Dougherty, who formerly caught for the Caseys.

He has "Jimmy" Cooper for his third-sacker. Many fans believed Cooper led this department last season. Johnny Dick will cavort at the short-stop berth.

The old war-horse, "Milt" Jones, will still be on the firing line, along with Harry Minster and Allison Hill, the Indian twirler.

Other players on the roster are: Freddy Hibbs, Benny Praul, Leo Hibbs, Charlie Ihrig, Paul Moore and "Reds" Dewsnap.

On the opening night of the schedule, the Hibernians will meet St. Ann's on Leedom's field, and Rohm and Haas battles the Grundy team on Landreth's field.

PHILA. STARS BOOKED TO PLAY HERE TONIGHT

The baseball game to be played on Landreth's field at Bristol tonight at 6.15 should be a most interesting game, as the Farmers have won two games and should be better with each contest, but they will have to be very good to hold the Philadelphia Stars, as this club has won 14 out of 15 games played this season.

The Stars have one of the heaviest hitting independent teams in eastern baseball, and Landreth's will have to be on their toes every minute of the game with flashy fielding to hold the colored boys in check.

This is the first time the Philadelphia Stars have been in this vicinity and a big crowd is expected for the game.

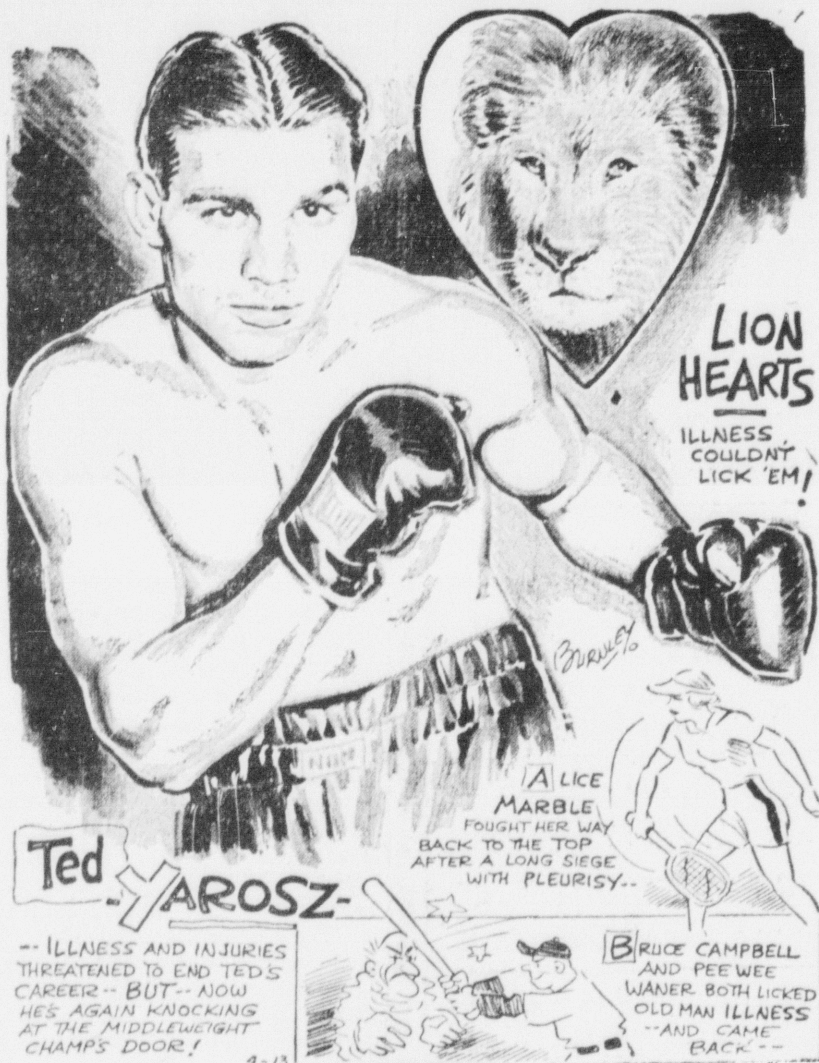

The line-up:
Borden's Philadelphia Stars: Ted Page, right field; Roy Parnell, left field; "Popeye" Harris, first base; Jud Wilson or Dewey Creacy, third base; Jake Dunn, center field; Halley Harding, second base; Ed. Tarvey, short-stop; Larry Brown or Ed. Casey, catcher; Lamor Yokeley, Rocky Ellis, Tommy Thompson, Slim Jones, Webster McDonald, pitchers.

NOBEL PRIZE VALUE OFF

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — (INS) — Each of the Nobel Prizes to be awarded next winter will be worth 158,463 kronor ($42,468.00 approximately), which is somewhat less than the 1936 prizes, each of which was worth 159,849 kronor or about $42,839.00.

Courageous Comebacks

By BURNIE

It takes real courage—moral as well as physical—to come back as an athlete after a serious siege of illness has threatened to end one's career. Alice Marble did it. A couple of years ago, just when she seemed headed for the tennis heights, she suffered a breakdown due to the strain of too much tennis. Pleurisy set in, and it seemed that the blonde Californian's net future was irrevocably shattered. But after a long rest, Alice came back—and how! Now she's the national champion—conqueror of the great Helen Jacobs.

Gamesters such as Bruce Campbell and Pee Wee Wanner recently wrote baseball history by making gallant comebacks after nearly being counted out by Old Man Illness. Remember the saga of Campbell's battle with the dread spinal meningitis? He was struck down early in the season and then returned from death's door to win back his regular outfield job later in the year.

Teddy Varosz, former middleweight king, is another gallant battler who showed his mettle in the face of illness and adversity. Teddy was a sick man when he lost his title to Babe Risko, and he suffered several broken ribs that also set him back. It was thought that his ring career was over, but the lion-hearted Pittsburgher came back to lick the man who had dethroned him, and is now once again on the threshold of the middleweight throne.

COX AND OLSON GIVEN DRAW AT ARENA BOUT

TRENTON, N. J., May 6—With both contestants practically out on their feet after a gruelling 35 minutes of wrestling, the feature bout at the Arena last night between Dynamite Joe Cox and Cliff Olson ended in a draw as Referee Tommy Parsonett counted out both principals as they mauled each other on the ringside floor.

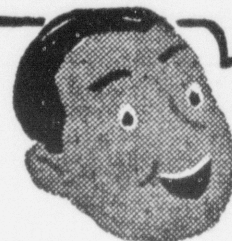

The wrestlers had won a fall apiece, and were so anxious to gain the deciding fall that their anxiety apparently got the best of them, for they tossed caution to the wind as they stalked about the ring waiting for the opportunity to make the kill.

Cox had the better of the going up until the sudden ending, but Joe lost his balance after he had tossed Cliff from the ring and tumbled head forward between the ropes to land with a resounding thud on the floor. Both attempted to enter the ring, but were unable to free themselves from the other's grasp. Referee Parsonett, meanwhile, had completed the count, and, as the contestants re-entered the ring, he raised both of their hands to designate a draw.

The first fall went to Cox after 19 minutes when the latter pounced on Olson after he had dropped Cliff to the canvas with a series of stunning forearm blows. Olson won the second fall in 15 minutes when he brought Cox to the canvas with a resounding thud with a flying mare.

George Manich won his second triumph in as many weeks when he pinned Jim Wright in the semi-windup.

EXPECT ANARCHY TO BLAST WAY TO FRONT IN SPAIN

To Pass Advantage in Civil War to Insurgent Generalissimo Franco

FRESH OUTBREAK

Knickerbocker Says Atrocities of Both Sides are Equally Bad

By H. R. Knickerbocker
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
(World copyright, 1937. Reproduction in whole or part strictly prohibited.)

LONDON, May 6—Anarchy is threatening to blast its way to the front again in loyalist Spain and pass the advantage in the civil war to Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

From the beginning of the civil war, neutral Europe tended to favor Franco because he stood for "law and order," and Italy and Germany were able to assert they were intervening on Franco's side to save Spain from chaos and avert from Europe the danger of a "red spot of infection."

Wholesale slaughter of priests, nuns, aristocrats and rich middle-class people by government adherents at the outset of the conflict alienated especially British sympathies, but during the last few months the Valencia Government convinced many persons that the Anarchist gangs had been suppressed and order restored.

This, combined with the destruction and partial extermination of Guernica by Franco's German bombers swayed the British Government to defy Franco's protests and send the British navy to convoy Basque women and children and old men from Bilbao to a refuge abroad.

Now, however, the fresh outbreak of Anarchists in Catalonia has renewed British conviction it would be better for Franco to win, for, whatever the cost, it is a fact he maintains on his side considerably more order than prevails on the side of his enemies.

Personal observation supports the general impression that atrocities committed by both sides in the war are equally bad and executions behind the lines of loyalists and insurgents equally numerous, but it is a fact that mob violence is almost unknown on Franco's side, where the executions are carried out by order in an "orderly" fashion.

Until the first week of November, all prisoners taken by the insurgents were shot, as all prisoners taken by the loyalists were shot. Then Franco ordered a halt to the killing of all prisoners.

On my recent visit I was told the insurgents now hold around 9,000 prisoners, much to the disgust of the more radical-minded officers, who believe only complete extermination can end the civil war.

All the atrocity stories told by each side are probably true, judging from those personally witnessed. Revolting though atrocities are on one side, the point is Franco controls his situation and his orders are obeyed and he has had no trouble within his own ranks which he has not been able to suppress.

WOMEN PLAN TO BE EARLY FOR COURIER COOKING SCHOOL TONIGHT, IN ORDER TO SECURE CHOICE SEATS; PLEASED WITH PRACTICAL RECIPES GIVEN

Miss Edna M. Ferguson, Lecturer - Demonstrator, Pleased With Response

Only Two More Nights Remain; Banner Crowds Are Expected at Each

Scores of women from all over this area expressed their intention at last evening's session of The Bristol Courier cooking school of being among the first in the Bristol M. E. Church lecture room tonight, in order to secure front seats.

The choice seats were taken at an early hour last evening, with the balcony proving very popular. Late-comers fully enjoyed the program, but scores of them vowed to be among the first tonight at the third session of the school over which Miss Edna M. Ferguson, nationally-known home economist presides.

Women of Bristol and outlying sections are putting their stamp of approval wholeheartedly on the school, which will continue tonight and tomorrow evening, starting promptly at eight o'clock. They are eager to learn all the good recipes and new cooking "wrinkles" possible, in order to care well for the health and happiness of their families.

The suggestion being heard in many neighborhoods today is "Let's go early tonight," and the home-makers who have enjoyed the first two sessions are not having any difficulty in inducing their neighbors to accompany them.

Dishes that are wholesome and health-giving, and yet easy to prepare and economical, are included in Miss Ferguson's programs. Last evening she made Texas hash, and the keen nostrils early detected the goodness of the dish. Corn fritters, flavored with parsley, and in which batter was mixed cracker crumbs, were made before the eyes of the few hundred women gathered; then for good measure Miss Ferguson concocted a cabbage, celery and pimiento salad; some chocolate crispies, a dainty sweet for young and old.

REPRESENTATIVES OF CHURCHES TO GATHER

Will Discuss the Possibility of School of Education for Next Fall

FOR LOWER BUCKS CO.

A meeting of representatives from all Protestant churches in lower Bucks County has been called for Monday evening next, in Bristol Presbyterian Church.

The invitations extended are to the pastor and two delegates from each church in the area.

The purpose of the meeting is to plan for a School of Education for next Fall. At Monday evening's meeting the group will discuss the purpose and need of such a school in this section, and if a decision to organize such is reached plans will be perfected for the organization, and carrying on of the work.

Representatives have been invited from 17 churches, and those backing the movement state that should any Protestant churches in lower Bucks County not receive such because of an oversight, they are to feel free to send delegates.

Dr. Fred W. Tomlinson, of the Baptist Board of Education, Philadelphia, will be present on Monday evening at eight o'clock, to address the gathering. He will discuss the need of and opportunity for such a community organization in this locality.

A card party will be conducted this evening at 1801 Farragut avenue, the home of Mrs. William Borchers, for benefit of the Mothers' Association of Bristol public schools. The hour is 8:30.

ELABORATE PAGEANTRY TO MARK OPENING OF FRISCO'S NEW GOLDEN GATE BRIDGE

Canada and Mexico to Participate in Fiesta Attending Dedication from May 27 to June 2

By Lee Rashall
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
SAN FRANCISCO, May 6—(INS)—Having already accepted as a matter of course the marvels of the San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge, opened barely five months ago, San Francisco today is preparing to throw open with characteristic pageantry her even more spectacular span—the 35-million dollar Golden Gate bridge, longest and highest suspension span built by man—traversing one of the world's most legendary historic waterways, the mile-wide Golden Gate.

The entire western United States, Canada and Mexico will participate in the fiesta attending the dedication of the bridge from May 27 to June 2. It will be a week in which the city attempts to demonstrate its stature, its progressive constructive program, and its international interests.

San Francisco is making ready for the visitation of one million, five hundred thousand persons.

This will be the most ambitious commemoration ever undertaken in the San Francisco bay region, and will eclipse in splendor and fanfare the Striking Actors May Turn To C. I. O.

Hollywood, May 6—Angered by rebuffs from the American Federation of Labor, striking motion picture unions today threatened to turn to the militant Committee for Industrial Organization for support in their war against the film industry.

After a curt rejection of peace proposals by the Central Labor Council here, today, re-assigned picket lines about the "big ten" studios and announced the "strike is still on."

At the same time, Charles Lessing, head of the Federated Motion Picture Craft, admitted he is "seriously considering" calling a nation-wide boycott against all theatres showing pictures produced by the studios under fire.

Lessing said he had received "an unselfish offer of support" from the CIO in case he decides on this move.

Brush Fires Will Not Hinder Dirigible

Lakehurst, N. J., May 6—With their progress blocked by back fires, two wood fires in this area will burn themselves out today, before the transatlantic dirigible lands at the United States Naval Station here.

For a time it was feared the flames would provide a warm reception for the big airship, scheduled to complete its first crossing of the year at six p. m. A wide clearing prevented the fires from getting within three-quarters of a mile of the dirigible hangar here, so the woods fire would not have hampered the dirigible's landing, navy officers said.

SCARLET FEVER EPIDEMIC BEING FOUGHT BY SCHOOLS

Doylestown Authorities Are Taking Every Precaution To Stop the Disease

POSTPONE "GYM" SHOW

DOYLESTOWN, May 6—Doylestown school authorities are making every effort to combat the epidemic of scarlet fever now prevalent in this borough. Two more cases were reported during last week-end and efforts to eradicate the continuation of the disease are being made.

All the grades from one to eight, inclusive, are having their home rooms fumigated and the desks are wiped with lysol.

Teachers are requested to continue close supervision of all students and prevent any unnecessary congregating.

Because of the epidemic, announcement was made that the gymnasium exhibit which was to be held this Wednesday and Thursday, will be held Wednesday, May 19.

The exhibition is under the direction of Miss Lillian V. Kelly, girls athletic instructor.

A surprise party was given for two of the club members, who recently had birthday anniversaries. The guests of honor were Mrs. Fred Stewart, Bath street, and Mrs. Stanley Keers, 1528 Trenton avenue. Each was presented with a waffle iron. Cards were followed by a covered dish supper.

Those attending: Mrs. William Lynch, Mrs. Wilmer Dyer, Mrs. Jennie Deiterick, Mrs. Clifford Foster, Mrs. Leonard Fenton, Mrs. William Barr, Mrs. Fred Stewart, Mrs. Gilbert Lovett, Mrs. Joseph Keers, Mrs. Stanley Keers, Mrs. Anna Bellerby.

WOOD ST. TO BE REBUILT FOR PORTION OF LENGTH

Property Owners Advised To Have Pipe Connections Made at Once

WAIVE THE USUAL FEE

Wood street is to be rebuilt from Dorrance street to the Adams Hollow Creek, according to an announcement made today by the Street Committee of Bristol Borough Council. The work is expected to get underway early next week.

Announcement of the proposed work was made so as to advise property owners who might desire to have water, gas or sewer connections made into their property line. Those applying at once for permission to have such connections made will be granted permission to tear up the street without paying a fee for so doing. The permit fee will be waived if the application is made at once. Applications may be filed with the office of the borough engineer, Municipal Building.

A fee is always charged for tearing up streets to install water, sewer or gas connections because the street is damaged when once the surface has been laid and it is later ripped out. To obviate the necessity of ripping up a new street the street committee decided to waive the fee usually charged, providing the connections are made before the street is rebuilt.

Spirited Comedy Shown In "King and Chorus Girl"

The unusual procedure of launching a newcomer to American films with a starring role is followed in "The King and the Chorus Girl," the spirited comedy romance produced by Mervyn LeRoy for Warner Bros., which opens today at the Grand Theatre.

The player in this case is Fernand Gravet, famous Continental screen star, who makes his American bow in this picture. LeRoy met him last year in Paris, promptly signed him to a long term contract and brought him to Hollywood.

LeRoy insulates the action was not a gamble and declares his belief that American audiences will echo the praises of those in Europe once they see the tall, dark-haired, quiet spoken star. Incidentally, M. Gravet speaks English with an intriguing Oxfordian accent despite his birth in Belgium and his present residence in France. This is the result of his early schooling in England.

Norman Krauss and Groucho Marx fashioned a swift-paced, laugh crammed story for the new star. In it, he plays the role of a wealthy, spend-thrift ex-king who falls head over heels in love with an American chorus girl who isn't impressed by royalty. The chorine in this case is Joan Blondell.

Two experts in comedy—Edward Everett Horton and Mary Nash—are the ever-worried relatives of "King Alfred VII," and others in the cast include Alan Mowbray, Luis Alberni and Jane Wymann. Kenny Baker, of radio fame, is the solo singer in the numbers which show the "can can" dance in the gay Folies Bergere in Paris.

Romance, comedy, glamour, music and dancing combine to make a sparkling picture that promises a new value in film entertainment.

ASKS TO BE SENT TO REFORMATORY; STAGED A HOLD-UP

Jos. McLaughlin, 18, Phila., Pleads Guilty to Stealing Officer's Pistol

IS GIVEN THREE YEARS

Youth Attempted Hold-Up At Wright Service Garage Here

DOYLESTOWN, May 6—After he requested that he be sent to the Huntingdon Reformatory because he believed that they might do something for him there, Joseph McLaughlin, 18, of Philadelphia, was accommodated yesterday by Judge Calvin S. Boyer in Bucks County criminal court after the defendant had pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing a revolver and attempting a holdup.

The Court sentenced McLaughlin to three years in Huntingdon and directed that he be turned over to the Philadelphia authorities at once, to start first to serve any sentence they might impose there for the theft of an automobile to which he has confessed in that city.

Huntingdon is not new to McLaughlin. He has already served one year there for stealing a car several years ago, and he also served 13 months in a Catholic reformatory at Spring City, Pa.

McLaughlin pleaded guilty to stealing a revolver from the car of Chief of Police Jones, of Bristol, while the car was parked in that borough. He rode to Bristol from Philadelphia in a stolen automobile taken from the garage of a member of the State Legislature living in that city. Then he stole the pistol, and later held up William J. Murray, Bristol gasoline station attendant on April 1, at 5 a. m.

County Detective Anthony Russo, who arrested McLaughlin, read the young man's confession in court. The defendant asked Murray to "shell out with some money" as he placed the stolen pistol in his stomach.

"I told him that I would not 'shell out' and he said that he would shoot me then," Murray testified. "I said, well you had better shoot for you will get no money," Murray told the Court. "Then McLaughlin shook hands with me and said, 'you have a lot of guts' and then drove off toward Philadelphia. I reported the hold-up to the police and they traced him through the automobile license numbers that I furnished them."

Judge Boyer asked McLaughlin why he acted as he had been acting and the defendant simply replied, "I don't know."

Earl Geissau, 32, operator of a tap room at Argus, pleaded guilty yesterday to a violation of the state liquor laws. He told the court that he thought he could buy a tap room business and that the license went with the sale. He said he did not know that he had to apply for a license himself.

Geissau, police records showed, has served time in Lehigh county for maintaining a bawdy house. The Court sentenced the defendant to pay a fine of $50 and costs and serve two months in the Bucks County Prison.

One year in the Eastern State Penitentiary was the sentence Judge Boyer imposed on William G. Biddup, of Trenton, who pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of stealing 177 railroad tie-plats in Morrisville. He sold them to a Trenton junk dealer. The defendant has a police record, having served time in Trenton in 1933 on a similar charge.

Joseph W. Kaine, of Philadelphia, charged with driving while drunk on the Lincoln Highway on April 10, when he stopped a State Highway Patrolman to inquire the way to Trenton, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Boyer. He was sentenced to pay the costs and serve 30 days to one year in the Bucks County Prison.

Charged with uttering a worthless check for $75, John Serrill, 27, formerly of Hortham, Montgomery county, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Boyer. The check was given to William Klapp in 1934 and the defendant has been in jail in another section of the state since that time. The Court suspended sentence on condition that the costs be paid and Klapp be reimbursed in installments of $5 a week, and placed Serrill on probation for one year.

Relatives and friends have been invited to attend the funeral service, Saturday at two p. m., at his late residence. The Rev. Howard L. AFTER 40

Because young men are preferred for the more strenuous jobs of mass production in factories, there has been a lot of exaggerated discussion of what is to become of the "man over 40." The subject is worthy of study.

Industrial authorities have explained that there are many places in modern industry in which the experience and wisdom and reliability of men of 40 and older are much more valuable. This is worth knowing, but there are many other facts to consider.

Industry has been much in the limelight of late because of labor disputes. But the manufacturing and mechanical industries employ only 15 per cent of our people. And of those working in the factories today only a few intend to make day-labor in the factories their life work.

Youth meetings listen to a lot of discouraging speeches nowadays, with figures of unemployment quoted impressively. The fact is that an alert person probably has more opportunities to get a job now than ever before. Unfortunately there are influences at work which make it easier for the fellow who doesn't want to work much and hasn't much pep or initiative, to make excuses for being idle.

Walter B. Pitkin, who figured out that life begins at 40, has a new book called "Careers After Forty," in which he shows how mature persons may carry out fine programs of usefulness without depending on the will of any boss. All they need is the ability to use the means that are available everywhere and to create their own opportunities.

EARLY MARRIAGE

There is a measure of human wisdom in the opinion expressed by Dr. Nathan W. Winkelman, professor of neuropathology, University of Pennsylvania, that twenty-five is the best age for young people to get married.

Save for certain normal age fluctuations occasioned by prevailing economic conditions and the rather important matter of mutual consent of the parties contemplating the step, twenty-five is the approximate average age for young people to get married.

Economic conditions rule with a stern hand in early life, and young folks frequently do invite marital disaster by stolidly ignoring this important factor in planning for home building. Perhaps Dr. Winkelman is right in advocating that young brides hold their jobs, if they have any, although perhaps he sticks out his neck for trouble by this offering.

Lessons learned by the young bride in extra-marital employment are invaluable aids to happiness. She obtains a first-hand knowledge of the trials which beset her husband as a provider, and if she loves him as she must, she will not contribute in any way to the folly of a husband working himself to death at fifty and leaving a rich widow to have a swell time spending his dough.

"Rich Girl-Poor Girl" by FAITH BALDWIN

Dr. Jonathan Kimber, a newcomer in the field of medicine, arrives in the little town of Riverport and is welcomed by his late father's friend, Dr. Alan Ballard. When his father died his community lost its most valuable member," the old physician tells Jonathan.

CHAPTER II

Then he peered at Jonathan from under his bushy brows and asked: "What made you write me about an opening, up here? I would have thought you'd just walk into your father's practice."

"Yes, but I didn't want to. It would have been too easy . . . and too hard. Before I went to Hopkins, Dad took on an assistant. The pace got too much for him, and the town was growing. He wouldn't specialize, and he wouldn't turn away a patient. I felt that if anyone were to take over the practice it must be Keating . . . after all, he'd worked with Dad a long time. When I got back from Vienna we came to a satisfactory arrangement. He is to take over the house, lock, stock and barrel except for some personal things, Dad's books, some furniture which has been in the family a long time. . . . He'll carry on. I wanted to go somewhere where people didn't know me. Half of Dad's women patients had fed me cookies and spanked me and weren't likely to forget it, either."

"But didn't your father want you to stay on—?"

"No. . . . In the last letter he wrote me that he was pretty definite about that. He thought I'd do better to start out for myself. . . . I haven't any ties in the town," Jonathan said, "barring a couple of second cousins. . . . My mother's people were from Jersey, you know, and most of the Kimbers have moved further out West."

"When your letter came," said Ballard slowly, "it seemed like a solution. I wrote you I was going to California in the fall. But I didn't tell you that I'm going for good. . . ."

Jonathan looked up quickly, his lean dark face intent. "For good?" he repeated incredulously.

"Yep. Intended to die in harness. But Nan—that's my daughter, she's married and living in Pasadena—she's been begging me to come out. She and her husband and the kid were on here, a while ago. I hadn't told her that the old ticker wasn't behaving as well as it might, but as bad luck would have it, I pulled an attack while they were here. So there was nothing to it but promise that I'd retire in the autumn. They wanted me to go right on back with them, but shucks, I'd some jobs to do—couple of young women I've doctored since they were born who couldn't see their way to having their own babies this summer without the old man standing by. So, sometime along about October, I'll be heading West. Maybe I'll like it," he said wistfully. "I dunno."

After Mame died, I suppose I sort of got wrapped up in my practice. Nan was so far away . . . and I was born in this town and my father before me. But they tell me they've got some mighty pretty scenery out in California and a real climate."

Jonathan thought, he's taking it pretty hard, he's a game old chap. His keen, very brown eyes looked directly into the older man's. He asked:

"Suppose people would stand for me here?"

"At first," replied Ballard, "they'll look to you. Every old hen with a chronic ailment who's doctored with every physician in town, will come a-running to the new young one. Whether you'll keep 'em or not, can't say. You may get the cream, too. Johns Hopkins and Vienna will attract 'em, flies 'round a honey-pot. I've never had 'em—always been a bit too honest and outspoken for them and they're too rich for my liking. Were you thinking of specializing?"

"Well," said Jonathan, smiling, "I'm supposed to be a surgeon—"

Ballard whistled.

"Dick Jameson has the surgery pretty well sewed up here, in more ways than one," he said. "Rather good, too. But he's getting old. Still he doesn't like youngsters."

"I'm not," Jonathan said, smiling.

"Well, you're not a surgeon yet," Ballard said.

"I'm not interested in rich patients."

"Oh, yes, you are," said Ballard chuckling, "unless you're crazier than I think you are. However, Jameson . . . providing you're not aiming to charge fancy prices for hemstitching and cut-work embroidery."

"I'm not," Jonathan assured him, "and I didn't mean I don't want a general medical practice as well. I do. I'm keen on it. I know it isn't customary in these days, especially in the larger cities. But it seems right to me. When I operate on a patient I want to see him through afterwards, not turn him over to someone else. And I like obstetrics, too," he added, "and kids."

"Jack-of-all-trades, eh?" said the older man, "well, you're reverting to type, all right. And you've picked the right town to revert in. But I warn you that you have to walk carefully and not tread on important toes. This is a one-man town."

"Who's the one man?"

"Ex-State Senator Sutton. Made his money in shipping, got in on a pulp-mill merger as well, rich as the devil, even according to city standards. Elects the mayor, man-behind-the-throne stuff, President of the Board of Education, head of the hospital board, all ten fingers in every pie. Owns a couple of islands, winters in Florida, if he's a mind to, summers in Europe if his wife can pry him away. He's retired from business and gets a lot of fun out of bossing the town. He's got one daughter . . . and there's another set of toes you want to keep off of—unless you're a good dancer. She doesn't favor us with much of her company, but when she does things hum around here."

Jonathan laughed. He said, "Guess they won't bother me much."

Ex-State Senator Sutton, the political boss, at ease in his domestic throne room.

tume will greet sourdoughs and Eskimos, Indians and cowboys from the Northwest—The Cavemen and Cave-women of Grants Pass, Oregon, will shake hands with Victor McLaglen's Mounted Patrol from Hollywood.

And the Overland Trail will again be peopled with covered wagons, though simulated for the occasion, with Pony Express riders, and miners from Goldfish, Tonopah and the Comstock.

Signifying the international complexion of the event, representatives from several Latin American nations and countries of the interested Pacific area will be present to make San Francisco truly a meeting place of nations. The fiesta program has been mapped by citizens who adopted a historical approach which would depict the kaleidoscopic years preceding the bridge's completion—from the coming of the Spanish padres and Dons, down to the present.

Participation of the United States Navy has been assured by Admiral Arthur J. Hephburn. More than 150 warships, with 70,000 officers and men direct from five weeks' maneuvering in the Pacific, will grace the bay during the eventful week. This will be the largest peace-time naval demonstration ever witnessed in an American port.

An ambitious pageant with a cast of more than 3,000 actors in a newly-constructed amphitheater seating 25,000 persons will nightly tell the romantic story of California's growth.

Each of the seven days will be crowded with parades, festivals, sporting events, and aerobatic shows. The nights will be garbed in illumination shows, fireworks and street shows, with wandering minstrel bands serenading on street corners, in public squares and hotel lobbies.

One of the unique features will be an "International Night," in which each of San Francisco's famous foreign quarters, including Chinatown, will in turn be hosts to the city's visitors and celebrities.

California state dignitaries will assist in dedication of the Waldo approach, main northern artery approaching the bridge from Marin county.

Across the span, ninety feet wide, will be erected two huge golden gates. At a given signal a golden key will be inserted, the gates will swing ajar and fall into the sea. The key itself will be cast into the deep, signifying the idea that the bridge will forever remain open for the commerce of the world.

At that moment, guns will roar from

Fort Baker in the Marin Hills and will be echoed by guns of San Francisco Army Presidio. The United States fleet will swing in from the Pacific Ocean underneath the throughed span.

The air will be filled with zooming aircraft and private yachts and watercraft will dot the bay, as the cavalcades pass in review.

To complete the scene, even the streets of the city will be decorated in the gold and blue of the fiesta. Trolley poles will be transformed into evergreen redwoods, the metal wrapped in bark and branches spreading from the top.

Merchants will vie with one another in the decoration of their stores. Buildings, homes will be illuminated.

On May 27 all citizens and visitors will be permitted to walk across the new span, 220 feet over the strong tides of the Golden Gate channel.

Pedestrian day marks the formal opening of the fiesta, and on that night the pageant will commence, to be presented on three successive nights.

A solemn note will be struck by the ceremony in honor of the men who lost their lives in the building of the bridge. On Sunday afternoon, children of the public schools will cast flowers into the waters from the center of the span. A bronze plaque memorializing the dead will be placed, bearing the names of the lost bridge workmen.

Feminine interests will be satisfied by an extensive fashion show during which the entire shopping districts will be a showplace for comely mannequins exhibiting the latest creation of apparel.

The city which Robert Louis Stevenson called a "melting pot" because of its mingling of many bloods and peoples, is ready to demonstrate to a visiting world that it knows how to celebrate an important event.

The Golden Gate bridge is the second largest bridge of any kind in the world. Only the San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge exceeds it in length.

An orange fluff pie was included on last evening's list of delicacies, and Miss Ferguson showed how orange juice could be used in lieu of water for the crust.

In commencing her talk, Miss Ferguson reminded localities of the attractiveness of their borough, and told of how much she is enjoying her stay here. Then she continued with helpful suggestions for adding to the joy of home-life through better knowledge of cookery. She again told of her favorite pan-coat, for use in coating pans when cakes or cookies are to be baked, this being composed of one cup of Spry and one-half cup of flour.

Another helpful suggestion came from the lecturer-demonstrator, when after dropping cookie batter from a spoon, she flattened the cookies by means of a piece of cheese-cloth stretched over the mouth of a glass, and made secure with a rubber band. The cloth was first dipped in flour, and then pressed on each cookie.

These cooking schools are growing in popularity, and homes are being made happier and brighter, and health more vigorous because of them. Homemakers are given practical suggestions to make their work in their kitchen-laboratories easier, and are aided in giving their husbands and children more healthful meals. The results of Miss Ferguson's 25 years' experience in food fields, are being passed on to the hundreds of fortunate women who are taking advantage of the school which is sponsored by The Bristol Courier, local merchants and food houses.

Remember, only two more nights. Doors open at seven o'clock tonight and tomorrow, with the program starting promptly at eight.

RECIPES YOU WILL WANT TO TRY

Steamed Liver Loaf

With liver graduating right up in the top class of popularity, this novel recipe can be recommended, as a novel and different meat loaf. One virtue is that it may be served hot or cold. It should provide eight generous servings.

One pound liver, either beef or pork; one-half pound salt pork, one medium-sized onion, one cup fine corn flake crumbs, one-half cup milk, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, two eggs, beaten; one-fourth teaspoon salt, six sprigs parsley.

Boil liver. Put liver, salt pork, onion and parsley through the food chopper twice. Add the eggs, corn flake crumbs, milk and seasonings. Turn into a greased baking dish. Cover, or tie waxed paper over the top. This should be steamed slowly for about three hours.

Potato Surprises

This recipe is recommended for the bored junior. Children from two to five may have these for a main dinner dish.

Rice, or pound a steamed fillet of sole through a fine sieve. Season with salt, pepper and a little nutmeg. Wet with cream until you can roll it into balls about as big as a walnut.

Have ready some mashed potato seasoned with salt, two tablespoons of butter and 2 tablespoons of cream. Beat until light, cover each ball of fish with mashed potato, pressing it with a fork in any shape you may like. Place in a moderate oven and bake until thoroughly hot. Enough of these may be prepared for servings at two meals, storing half in the icebox for a later baking.

Southern Pecan Cookies

One cup shortening; two tablespoons confectioners sugar; one cup chopped pecans; two cups flour; one teaspoon baking powder; two tablespoons ice water; 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Mix into a dough. Roll thin and cut in tiny round cookies. Sprinkle with sugar and bake on a greased cookie sheet in a moderate oven ten minutes. These cookies, made from a real Southern recipe, are delicious and decidedly "nutty" in flavor.

Party Plum Salad

This requires a little 2½ can green gage plums; and two tablespoons lemon juice; green food coloring; one and one-half tablespoons gelatine; six tablespoons cold water; one-fourth cup mayonnaise; six tablespoons dry cottage cheese; one-fourth cup whipping cream, whipped.

Remove stones from plums and press pulp through a sieve. Add lemon juice and sufficient green food coloring to tint mixture lightly.

Soak one tablespoon of the gelatine in four tablespoons cold water and dissolve over hot water. Add to plum mixture, blend thoroughly and pour into square mold to make a three-fourths to one-inch layer. Chill until almost congealed. Then soak remaining one-half tablespoon gelatine in remaining two tablespoons cold water and dissolve over hot water. Cool slightly. Blend mayonnaise and cottage cheese and add dissolved gelatine mixture. Fold in whipped cream, then spread mixture over partially congealed plum gelatine. Return to refrigerator and chill until firm. This may be molded in individual forms, or in one large mold, in which case it should be cut in cubes and served on crisp lettuce hearts or with watercress. May be made a day in advance, of course.

Castilian Cake

One cup shortening; two cups sugar; four eggs, separated; one-fourth cup cherry juice; one cup milk; four cups flour; four teaspoons baking powder; one-fourth teaspoon salt; one cup maraschino cherries; one cup nut meats.

Cream shortening, add one cup sugar and cream thoroughly. Add well-beaten egg yolks and beat until very smooth. Add the cherry juice and milk alternately with the sifted dry ingredients.

Beat until smooth and add chopped cherries and nuts. Make a meringue of the four egg whites and the remaining cup of sugar. Fold into cake batter. Bake in three nine-inch layer cake pans in moderate oven 350 degrees F. about thirty minutes.

Put together with your favorite icing, which may be colored with a few drops of the cherry juice. Halves of the cherries also may be used between the layers and to decorate the top of this "company" cake.

Strawberry Sherbet

May bring thoughts of delicious, quickly-made ice box desserts. This sherbet fills both requirements.

Two cups cream buttermilk; one cup sugar; juice of one lemon; one pint strawberries, one egg white, unbeaten. Mash berries, add sugar and strained lemon juice. Mix with buttermilk and freeze to a mush. Remove mixture to a cold bowl, add unbeaten egg white and whip thoroughly. Return to tray and freeze.

FASHION PARADE

By Orry-Kelly

(Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing For International News Service) HOLLYWOOD — (INS) — Although there is fantasy, romance and daring in the gowns for evening, daytime things go right on being casual, comfortable and practical. This fast-moving, businesslike world we live in during the day requires clothes that will stand the gaff, but the leisure hours of evening create another mood. Then the frilly, picturesque feminine things create an illusion of olden days when life moved as slowly and predictably as a waltz.

For practical daytime purposes nothing tops the bolero or Eton-jacketed suit for this time of the year. Light weight wool is the ideal material for it, but when it comes to color selection a girl who has to worry about Old Man Budget has a choice to make. Either she should go in for ensembles of sober hue that can be made gay with colorful accessories or she should be bright about the basic outfit and neutral about accessories. Spring costumeing runs into a lot of money when a girl is neutral neither with ensemble nor accessories because that means she must have a number of each to keep colors from clashing.

Olivia de Havilland is a good example for budgeting girls to follow. Although her income as a star is great enough for her to order Parisian gowns haphazardly she sensibly budgets herself and spends no more money on her wardrobe than the average co-ed who depends on father for an allowance.

Since Olivia has a penchant for navy blue she selects this hardy perennial as the basis for her wardrobe each spring and taxes the budget to its limit with the finest accessories. The advantage of colorful accessories is that styles in such things as bags, gloves and scarfs change little from year to year, so that one eventually has a fine collection that can be used season after season to spice neutral ensembles.

The mainstay of Olivia's spring wardrobe is a navy wool crepe skirt with Eton jacket of the same material. On a cool day she may tone it up with a thistle-shaded boxy reefer with gloves, hat and bag to match. Another day she spikes it with red and white, wearing white satin blouse, red jersey cummerbund and red bag. A Roman-striped sash with crownless turban to match has its day. Gloves, pumps and tucked crepe blouse in pearl grey make up a sober trio that give variety.

Carol Hughes, on the other hand, likes riper ensemble shades so that she could really get by with only one set of matched neutral accessories during a season.

Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing For International News Service

HOLLYWOOD — (INS) — Here's a footnote that should be a headline: Feet need never hurt again. Elastic leather has been discovered and perfected. It gives with the foot for complete comfort and opens up marvelous opportunities for new shoe styles. When it comes into general use there will be many shoes made to fit snugly around the ankle with never a button, buckle or lace in sight. Although this new leather bids fair to be one of the sensations of fall it won't be available this spring or summer. However there are plenty of other interesting thoughts in shoes worth contemplation.

Bronze kid is a thrilling thought. Doris Weston wears pumps in this shade in "The Singing Marine" with a beige wool suit. For a rich color bronze is amazing versatile, being ideal for any brown ensemble and yet a perfect foil for powder blue, thistle and floral yellows. It also blends beautifully with the new bronze laces now achieving such fame.

Sandals of red, white and blue kid are London's whim, as the Coronation draws near. Mary Maguire, who received a pair of these from an English friend, finds the color combination ideal for all neutral frocks as well as for white or blue things. A little jeweled crown is pinned on the toe of hers . . . which seems to be the beginning of a new ornamental trend in shoes. Little gem-studded flowers, such as girls have been wearing in their suit lapels from boutonnières would be attractive posed on the toes of simple kid slippers.

An interesting note in footwear is that we are not matching up white sandals with white frocks this season. Instead we are doing as we did with Ann Sheridan in "Lady Luck"—styling white shoes with pastel clothes. White frocks, on the other hand, are being set off either with pastel kids or vividly colored ones.

Sandals, incidentally, have a distinct place in the fashion world, but they are for strictly formal or strictly informal occasions. They are not appropriate for street wear under any circumstances, but are particularly taboo if they are toeless sandals.

Little Patricia Walthall is one of the first girls in Hollywood to take up the wearing of Indian-beaded suede pumps. A grey pair she recently purchased have the toes worked in a gay design made of tiny colored beads.

So . . . before the elastic leather is ready there are plenty of other thrilling shoe styles to gladden a girl's heart.

FOR YOUR GARDEN LIBRARY

What will undoubtedly be a reference book for years to come on the subject of gourds was published this spring under the name "The Garden of Gourds." It is written by H. C. Bailey, the well-known editor of the "Cyclopedia of Horticulture," and is illustrated with full-page ink drawings which cover the field remarkably well. If you are interested in gourds, this book is a necessity. If you want ideas for novel decorations in the garden, it will prove very useful. It should be in the library of every garden club.

"Adventures in Gardening for Boys and Girls," by M. G. Kains, popular garden writer, offers some ideas for keeping the children off the street and working on a useful occupation which mothers should appreciate. Gardening is an ideal hobby for the younger members of the family, for it teaches the love of beauty and the home. And who could think of a better method of getting them interested in eating vegetables?

Miss Louise Mansfield has written "An Artist's Herbal" for the serious gardener, whose interest in herbs takes her beyond the sage, dill, mint and marjoram stage. More correctly, she has drawn such a book, for this new volume is a series of full page drawings, each done so splendidly that you will want to frame them for

Behind the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD—After several seasons of bleached skins, the movie stars are to go back to the darker tans, believes Jack Dawn, makeup expert at M-G-M.

It will be a case of gentlemen prefer bronze, for Dawn anticipates this tone will dominate the summer makeups.

He has devised a new makeup called bronze flecks which Jean Harlow will wear in "Saragoga," for the first time.

Proper trimming for the new getup, he points out, are red copper tones in the lipstick and copper tones in the nail polish.

The only drawback is that bronze flecks comes off on a gentleman's lapel.

Imported from Hungary for De Mille's "The Buccaneer," Franciska Gaal is cramming to pass the test for her first naturalization papers.

Glympa Brada, another Paramount actress, will take them out just as soon as she is 18.

The fiction of the French Foreign Legion being a hiding place for men with a past boomeranged on Warner's technical expert for "The Life of Zola," Louis Van Der Necker, when he applied for his first papers.

Van Der Necker, born in Belgium and naturalized Frenchman, told a clerk in the local naturalization office he was an officer in the Foreign Legion. "What crime did you commit?" Van Der Necker swears the clerk said. "I'm not sure you'd make a good citizen."

Honor of having the smallest foot in Hollywood has lately been ceded to Lily Pons, who wears a one triple A. But Armida's order to the R-K-O wardrobe department for her role in "Mexican Quarters" called for a straight size one shoe. They had to wire New York to have a pair made specially and airmailed back.

A soldiers' revolt scene in "The Road Back" called for Andy Devine to roughhouse with some extras. After a rehearsal with the six feet two, 245-pound ex-griddon star they went on a sit-down. So Andy phoned for his pals, Jack Foley, ex-Loyola half-back; Bill Gaysford, ex-U. S. C. end; Bob Connelly, halfback from the same campus; Andy's cousin, Bob Christie, and Brother-in-Law Buddy House, who put on German uniforms and did a real job.

When school let out for Clark Gable at the Los Angeles federal court, he stopped one of the Herald-Express lads to read all about it on his way home. The kid said no dice when he tried to pay for it, explaining his trial story had sold four times as many papers as usual.

It was either a case of canine genius or a pal's rib, but Marjorie Weaver, Twentieth Century-Fox contract lovely, locked her cocker spaniel, Duchess, in her apartment and stepped out to dance to Harry Owen's rhythms at the Beverly Wilshire, about three miles away. After the second dance, the dog came ambling into the place looking for her. Duchess made the rounds with the party.

PLAN VILLAGE FARM'S FIRST ANNUAL SHOW

LANGHORNE, May 6.—The first annual horse show to be staged at The Village Farm, near here, will take place on Sunday, May 30th, according to an announcement made by Major Edward B. Allen, director of the affair.

This show will follow the program of the Penn-Jersey Light Harness Racing Circuit, which will occur on Friday and Saturday, May 28th and 29th, and will precede the closing events of the circuit scheduled for May 31st.

Twenty-five classes are on the program released by Major Allen, which should attract many of the leading hunters, jumpers, gaited saddle horses, fine harness horses and junior class contestants. Entries for the show close Monday, May 17, at the Village Farm.

Gage B. Ellis, owner of the Village Farm, is president of the horse show, with Major Allen as director, and Norman L. Marshall, of Trenton, secretary.

The honorary horse show committee consists of Mrs. Edward B. Allen, Flemington, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Brooks, North Wales, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Ellis, III, Lansdowne, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. John de Z. Hamilton, Southampton, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kinder, Langhorne, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Royal Little, Providence, R. I.; Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Peckham, Germantown, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Porter, Langhorne, Pa.; Dr. and Mrs. John N. Robinson, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Smith, Newtown, Pa.; Mrs. George K. Large, Flemington, N. J.; Mrs. Horace Mann, Trenton; Hubert Latham, Providence, R. I.; and Jack Spencer, Trenton.

Four judges have thus far been invited—Clifford Brumfield, Ivyland, Pa.; Joseph Serrill, Newtown Square, Pa.; R. C. Heather, New York City, and Steve G. Phillips, Xenia, O. Phillips will act as starter for the Penn-Jersey meeting at the Village Farm. He is widely known as the starter of the famed Hambletonian Stake, most noted of all light harness racing events.

Dr. William Ivins, Philadelphia, and Dr. W. A. Haines will be the veterinarians, with Roland Baker, of Philadelphia, the ringmaster.

The entry list includes six classes for hunters and jumpers, nine for five-gaited saddle horses; four for five-gaited saddle horses; two junior classes; a chair ride, an event for trotters and pacers entered in the P-J races at the Village Farm meeting in which they must be shown in harness to a suitable two-wheel racing sulky or cart; and a class for standard-bred brood mare with foal at foot.

The beautiful Augusta Willoughby

Little Challenge Trophy, to be competed for by five-gaited saddle horses placing first or second in three specified classes, will be the feature prize of the show. These three classes are for novice five-gaited saddle horses, to be shown in hand; five-gaited mares over 142 hands, and five-gaited stallions or geldings over 142.

The horse show will start at 10 a. m., May 30, while the harness racing each day will commence at two p. m.—all times being daylight saving.

A total of $5,000 in purses and trophies for the harness races have attracted over 225 standard-breds with many of the country's leading drivers. Other meetings of the P-J circuit will be held at Trenton Fair Grounds and Flemington Fair Grounds.

Reopen Taylor Murder Case

Los Angeles, May 6.—The 16-year-old unsolved murder of William Desmond Taylor, director of silent picture days, was suddenly re-opened here today by investigators for the district attorney's office.

The officers said they had obtained new evidence from two diaries kept by Mary Miles Minter, former screen star and fiancée of Taylor.

Subpoenas calling for them to testify before the Grand Jury here were issued for Miss Minter, her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, and her sister, Mrs. Margaret Fillmore.

Claim Rates "Unjust"

Harrisburg, May 6.—In a precedent-shattering move, the Public Utilities Commission today sent out formal notices to 104 gas companies in Pennsylvania, charging their rates were "unjust and unreasonable."

The companies, located in about 30 towns, serve 750,000 customers.

The companies were ordered to file their answer by June 1, so that a date for hearings could be fixed. It is the first investigation of its kind ever undertaken.

Woman Doctor Ends Life

New York, May 6.—Despairing she would never again pick up the brilliant medical career which was halted when she was cast out of Germany, Dr. Emma Lublinsky, a handsome blonde of 36, plunged to her death today from the fourth floor of a women's club.

She left two notes—one to her new-found friends in New York, thanking them for befriending and helping her. The other was addressed to her husband, an architect, who was also thrown out of Germany by the Nazis, and who is now in France trying to establish himself there.

In Berlin, Dr. Lublinsky had headed a well-known clinic for the treatment of women's and children's diseases, and was regarded as a specialist in her field.

Firemen Injured

Jenkintown, May 6.—James Martin, 25, and Michael McCowin, 42, volunteer members of the Jenkintown Fire Department, were injured today when fire damaged the rear of the home of William Barson.

Barson, his wife Jane, and their three-year-old daughter Beth, were driven to the streets in their night clothing. The family moved here from New York only a week ago.

Fire Burns Scow's Interior

Philadelphia, May 6.—Fire of undetermined origin today burned out the interior of a scuttle scow on the beach of the Delaware River, near the House of Correction, at Torresdale.

The barge, abandoned by the Department of Wharves, Docks and Ferries, has been used by swimmers and fishermen for the past eight years.

Car Overturns; Six Hurt

Upper Darby, May 6.—Six persons were injured today when their automobile overturned twice, after it collided with a Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company bus near here early today. Passengers on the bus were shaken up but escaped injury. Rita Muller, 29, of Philadelphia, received a fractured skull, and Catherine McCauley, 18, also of Philadelphia, a possible broken back. The other four occupants of the passenger car escaped with minor injuries.

Lloyd Estate Three Million

Media, May 6.—The late Horatio D. Lloyd, a partner in the firm of J. P. Morgan & Company, left an estate valued at $3,368,339, an inventory filed here today disclosed. Lloyd died at his home in Haverford, last January 21st.

Granzow Academy Prepares For Recital On May 28th

About the busiest place in Bucks county today is the Granzow Dancing Academy where finishing touches are being put to various dances, and costumes, for the second annual recital, Friday, May 28th.

For the past eight weeks two dress-makers have been busy in order to have the 400 costumes ready in time.

These recitals are 100% local, both in talent and labor, so as to keep as much business as possible at home. Everything for use in this recital has been made by people of Bristol and Croydon.

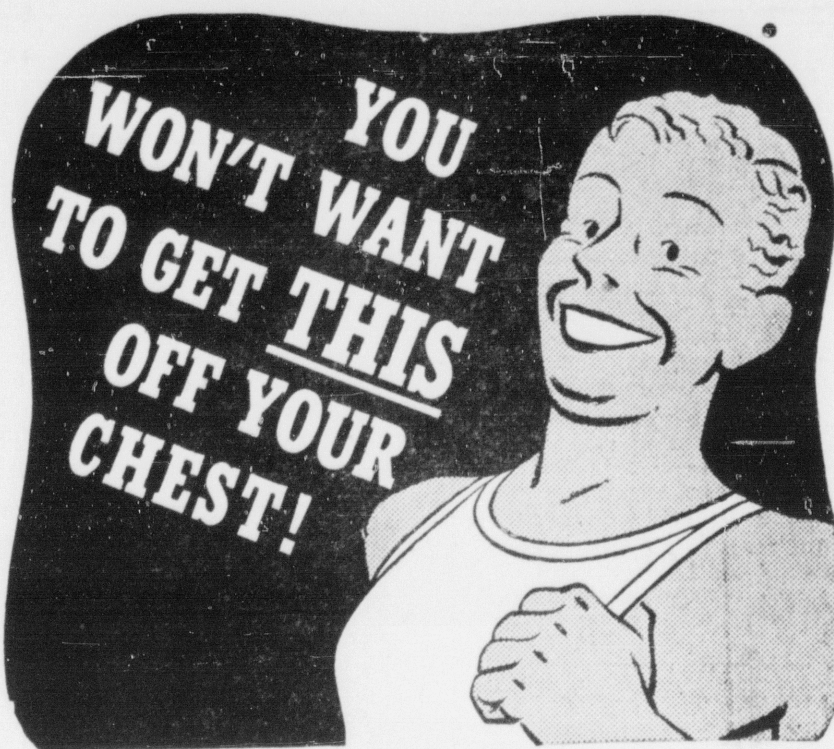

The talent found in the community is far above average and there can be no question some of these children will eventually make the grade on Broadway or Hollywood. These children have worked very hard for the past year and this recital is their night in which they can show their many friends just what they have accomplished. "And they have good reason to feel proud of their accomplishments," states one who has seen rehearsals. "They are producing a recital this year second to none, either in dance technique, extravagant costumes, or stage setting."

The Granzow Sisters feel the children this year have developed to such an extent that they should have their recital this year in the Grand Theatre, where they can display their talent to best advantage, as the costumes are very elaborate. The Misses Granzow feel they would not be doing justice to their charges if this recital was held anywhere but in the Grand Theatre. They promise to produce a recital this year "better than anything ever seen in Bristol before."

RECIPES DEMONSTRATED AT THE COURIER COOKING SCHOOL

Following are the recipes demonstrated at the Courier cooking school held in the Bristol M. E. Church lecture room on Tuesday evening:

Queen Pudding

2 eggs
4 cups milk
6 slices stale bread
½ cup sugar
teaspoon salt
½ Nutmeg
Jelly

Spread the bread with butter. Lay it in a baking dish in whole slices, or dice it. Separate the eggs. Beat the egg yolks and add the milk, sugar, salt and nutmeg. Stir until the sugar dissolves. Pour this over the bread. Bake at 350 degrees F. until nicely set. When cool spread jelly over the top. Make a meringue of the whites. Put this over the top and brown delicately in the oven.

Stuffed Pork Chops

6 pork chops, 1 inch thick
¾ bread crumbs
3-4 cup cooked chopped macaroni
1 tablespoon onion
Salt and Pepper
Savory seasoning

Make a dressing of the last five ingredients. Split the chops. Fill the chops with the dressing. Skewer them if necessary. Dredge the chops with seasoned flour. Put them in a roasting pan. Nearly cover with a mixture of half water and half milk. Bake for 1 hour at 350 degrees F.

Lemon Tea Biscuits

2 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
Sugar lumps
5 tablespoons shortening
2-3 cup milk or more
2 tablespoons sugar
Lemon juice

Measure the flour, salt, sugar and baking powder into the sifter. Sift together three times. Cut in the shortening until the mixture looks mealy. Add the milk gradually until all is blended. Turn out on a slightly floured board. Roll out one inch thick. Cut into biscuits. Into each biscuit press a sugar lump. Soak the lump with lemon juice. Bake at 350 degrees F. until nicely browned. When done, split and spread while hot, with a

Tasty French Dressing

Pastry

1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
3 tablespoons cold water

Measure and sift the flour and salt together. Cut in the shortening. Mix in the water gradually with a fork. Then add just enough more water to hold the particles together. Roll out and put in pie shell.

Pan-Fried Onions

2 tablespoons shortening
4 sliced onions
½ cup water
½ teaspoon salt
Sprinkle of pepper

Melt the shortening in the frying pan. Add the onions, water, salt and pepper. Cover and cook slowly till the water evaporates. Increase the heat and saute until golden brown.

Deviled Oysters

½ cup salad oil
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon paprika
¼ cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon horseradish
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
24 oysters
2 eggs

Pour batter into two greased 8-inch layer cake pans. Bake in moderately hot oven 375 degrees F. 20-25 minutes. Spread Banana Frosting on one layer and arrange cut bananas on top. Place second layer on top and spread remaining frosting on top and sides of cake. This cake may also be baked in cup cake pans in moderately hot oven 375 degrees F. for 20-25 minutes. RECIPES WHICH MISS FERGUSON DEMONSTRATED AT COOKING SCHOOL

Following are the recipes demonstrated at the Courier cooking school held in the Bristol M. E. Church lecture room on Wednesday evening:

Cabbage, Celery and Pimiento Salad

2 cups shredded cabbage
2 cups chopped celery
Mayonnaise
Salt and pepper
Paprika
2 tablespoons pimiento

Soak the cabbage in cold water one hour before shredding. Crisp the celery before chopping it. Mix the vegetables with two forks before adding the mayonnaise. Season with salt, pepper and paprika. Arrange on crisp lettuce. Dot all over the top with the chopped pimiento.

Texas Hash

2 large sliced onions
2 chopped green peppers
3 tablespoons shortening
1 pound or 2½ cups chopped meat
2 cans tomatoes
½ cup uncooked rice
1 teaspoon chili powder
1 teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon pepper

Cook the onions and green peppers slowly in the shortening until the onions are yellow. Add the chopped meat. Sauté the mixture until it falls apart. Add the tomatoes, rice and seasonings. Put in a casserole and cover. Bake at 375 degrees F. for 45 minutes or until browned.

Foamy Omelet

4 eggs
Salt and pepper
4 tablespoons milk or water

Separate the eggs. Beat the yolks. To them add the liquid and seasoning. Beat the whites until stiff, but not dry. Fold in the whites. Heat the frying pan very hot and grease it well. Pour in the egg mixture. Cook over a very gentle fire until brown underneath. Place in a hot oven until the top won't stick to the finger.

Aunt Jane's Sugar Cookies

1 cup shortening
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon soda

2 cups sugar
1 egg
½ cups sifted flour
¼ teaspoon baking powder
1 cup milk

Combine shortening, salt, vanilla and soda. Add sugar gradually and cream well. Add egg and beat until very light. Sift, measure flour. Resift with baking powder. Add to the creamed mixture with milk. Mix well. Drop from tip of teaspoon on baking sheets greased with pan-coat, which is a mixture of shortening and flour, or press through pastry bag. Flatten the cookie for stamping with a glass covered with damp cloth. Bake in oven 375 degrees for 12-15 minutes. Makes 8 dozen cookies.

Pineapple Cream Sherbet

½ cup lemon juice
1 cup cooked pineapple juice
1 teaspoon gelatine
¼ cup cold water
1-8 teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
¾ cup boiling water
grated rind of 1 orange
½ pint heavy cream
1 egg

Soak the gelatine in the cold water. Stir the sugar into the boiling water. Dissolve the gelatine in this. Add the fruit juices, egg yolk and orange rind. Freeze this to a mush. Beat the cream and egg white together until stiff. Fold this into the other mixture and freeze.

Corn Fritters

2 eggs
2 cups corn
2 tablespoons parsley
½ cup fine cracker crumbs or more
¼ teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon warm water

Beat the eggs. Add the corn, parsley, salt and pepper. Mix together the soda and warm water. Add this to the corn mixture. Stir in the cracker crumbs. Drop by teaspoonsful into hot deep shortening at 375 degrees F. Fry until golden brown, then drain on absorbent paper.

Crispies

3 bars milk nut chocolate
1 square bitter chocolate

½ teaspoon vanilla

Cornflakes

Melt all the chocolate together in a fair sized saucepan. Add the vanilla. Stir in as many cornflakes as the chocolate will take. Drop by spoonfuls on wax paper to harden.

Scalloped Noodles and Salmon

3 cups cooked noodles
2 cups salmon
1-3 cups milk
1 egg
Salt and pepper
Crumbs

Into a greased casserole put a layer of one-third of the seasoned noodles. Over this put one-half the seasoned salmon. Repeat, then put the last of the noodles on top. Beat the milk and egg and pour over the mixture. Over this put a layer of buttered crumbs. Bake until nicely browned.

Orange Fluff Pie

3 eggs
1 orange
½ lemon
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons water

Separate the eggs. Beat the yolks with the water and ½ cup sugar until creamy. Cook this and the fruit juices until thick in a double boiler. Beat the whites stiff. Add the salt and the rest of the sugar gradually. Fold this into the yolk mixture. Bake in the cooked shell until delicately browned at 325 degrees F.

Orange Pie Crust

1¼ cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
3 tablespoons orange juice or more
½ teaspoon sugar

Measure and sift the dry ingredients. Cut in the shortening. Add the orange juice gradually using as much as is necessary to just hold the ingredients together. Bake at 425 degrees F. just until the edge is set before putting in the filling.

SKILLED HOME ECONOMISTS ARE HEROINES IN CALAMITY

Home Economists were among the unsung heroines in the flood disaster early this year in the Middle West.

Expert authorities on food joined with untrained volunteers in working efficiently to handle food supplies in stricken cities overwhelmed by the disaster.

When the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers went on a rampage, all food in the stricken section was commandeered, but it required more than martial law to handle and administer that supply.

Home Economists who happened to be lecturing in any section of the flood zone joined their skilled forces with the dieticians of hospitals, where the staffs were faced with the staggering necessity of caring for 10 and 20 times the number of patients normally handled.

Specialized training, experience and ability all combined to fit these women to meet the emergency. Many of them served day and night, almost without rest.

The dietician in one Kentucky hospital, with the help of two other women, provided for 2,500 additional patients, besides the regular patients, transients and rescue workers. It was these trained workers who saw that every drop of water used in the hospital for operations, drinking, bathing and even dishwashing was boiled.

A Home Economist, who had just completed a series of demonstrations in Louisville set up a Canteen Service, and furnished soup and bread on a 48-hour schedule for the motorboat rescue squad, ambulance drivers and the bedraggled refugees.

Few papers mentioned these heroic volunteers and the women themselves sought no laurels. It was just another job.

USEFUL HINTS OF KNOWLEDGE

Cabbaging Fame

Did you know—that Joseph Hergeheimer broke into print with a recipe for stuffed cabbage, which he sold to Good Housekeeping under his wife's by-line?

Saving Space

The ultimate in space-saving seems to have been reached in the combination buffet and dining table brought out this year. When closed, the piece is simply a handsome modern buffet of pin-striped walnut. But pull down the front knob and a cupboard drawer opens, disclosing a full-sized dining table, neatly stored away in folding leaves.

Useful Vinegar

Wise motorists are learning to keep a bottle of vinegar in their car, just in case the windshield wiper goes on strike. Vinegar poured over the outside of the windshield from the top will keep the glass clear even in a heavy storm.

Handy Parsley

voring. The busy cook who is about to become hostess, or play bridge, should rub chopped parsley well into the fingers. It will remove all traces of such strong odors as onions or garlic. If no parsley is available, make a paste of baking soda and water and rub the hands.

Watch Spices

Keep the lids on your spice jars

tightly closed. Test tops after using, and make sure that they have not been carelessly placed. Air tends to make spices lose their flavor.

WHAT IS THIS THING CALLED 'FELL'? IS ASKED

What is this thing called "Fell"? That is the question!

Brides and experienced food shoppers, too, often have been put on the spot by the meat dealer's casual question, after the roast lamb is ordered: "Shall I remove the fell?"

The "fell" refers to the thin, paper-like covering over lamb, and economists maintain that there is no reason for removing it from a leg of lamb. Formerly, some cooks maintained that this covering imparted a strong flavor to the meat, but that belief has gone the way of many food fallacies.

Actually, it is wise to leave the fell on a leg of lamb, since the roast does keep its shape better and seems to cook more quickly, as though this skin provided a double roasting covering. Therefore, if the butcher does inquire about the fell, tell him to leave it on.

A shoulder roast of lamb is another thing again. The fell usually is removed from this cut, since in cooking, it contracts and has a tendency to pull the roast out of shape.

Lamb chops present still another problem. The long cooking of a roast transforms the fell into a tender, crisp delicacy. However, the fell will not become tender enough to be palatable at the end of the brief cooking period allowed the chops. The butcher does usually remove the fell before cutting the chops, or he may strip it off in trimming them, in one "fell" swoop.

Turkeys, ducks, roasting chickens and broilers all are good bargains on the market. Veal also is considered a good buy among meats. Prices are on a parity with last year's, and seem inclined to stay at their present level, or go even lower.

If none of these main dishes seem to solve the problem of that special dinner party, why not order a Frenched leg of lamb? This is a regular leg of lamb, with the meat removed from the shank end of the leg bone, a distance of three or four inches. A gay paper frill over the bone provides a handle which makes carving the roast a pleasure for any husband.

There are many clever ways of varying the flavor of your special roast. Many butchers are learning to stock fresh mint for convenience. The leaves should be stripped from the stalks and minced almost to a pulp for the savory sauce. When this sauce is ready, with vinegar, salt a trace of sugar, or the preferred seasonings, try basting the lamb roast with the mint sauce to impart a very delicate flavor.

Another expert cook suggests glazing the outside of the roast with tart currant jelly. Basting the leg of lamb with lemon juice may add a distinctive taste. Or cover the roast with lemon slices, secured with toothpicks. For that extra brown, crusty roast, rub well with olive oil. If your family favors a whiff of garlic, use that by all means, but use it sparingly, for it easily overpowers the delicate taste of lamb. One method of using garlic in roast lamb is to insert a small clove of garlic in the leg joint. Be sure to remove the clove before the roast goes to the table. It is even safer to rub the roasting pan, or the lamb itself with a bruised clove of garlic before the meat goes in the oven. Rub a sifting of flour and seasonings well into the meat, too.

The Frenched leg of lamb also requires the fell, for the thin, paper-like covering helps to keep the roast in shape, after some of its support has been removed.

The Frenched leg of lamb should be prepared precisely like any other lamb roast. After the meat has been seasoned, place it skin side down on a rack in an open roasting pan. Many cooks favor placing it in the oven without a cover and without water, keeping the oven at a moderate temperature to avoid drying and over-browning.

If this method is used, keep the temperature close to 300 degrees F., allowing about 30 minutes for each pound for cooking. Or the roast may be browned quickly, and then covered tightly to conserve the juices.

Carving is a joy with the Frenched leg of lamb. Have the platter warmed and place the roast cut side up, standing the platter in front of the carver so that the shank end of the leg is to the left of the carver. The carver should cut the slices at right angles to the bone, holding the convenient frilled handle in his left hand, while he manipulates the carving knife.

LABOR HELD THE NEWS SPOTLIGHT IN MONTH OF APRIL; AMERICANS PRACTICALLY FORGOT ABOUT EUROPE, IN MIDST OF INDUSTRIAL THREATS

By International News Service

Labor held the news spotlight in April. Never before in history has labor provided such a fount of news.

With the major industries threatened and strike-torn, Americans practically forgot about Europe and focused their attention on the biggest show of the month... the tri-cornered battle between John L. Lewis, militant CIO head... the captains of industry... and William Green, American Federation of Labor spokesman.

The beginning of the month found Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan working day and night trying to effect a settlement of the Chrysler strike. The governor finally brought Lewis and the auto heads together in his Lansing office.

There followed days of conferences between Lewis and Walter P. Chrysler.

And when things looked darkest, Gov. Murphy summoned reporters and quietly declared:

"Everything's been settled." Then with quick dispatch, Governor Murphy brought the Reo and Hudson automobile strikes to an end... and Michigan's industrial wheels began turning again.

The new spotlight swung Eastward as 400,000 miners in the soft coal industry threw down their tools and refused to work when mine operators failed to agree on the new terms in the working contracts. Lewis announced a settlement the next day and the miners returned to work.

Meanwhile a new wave of "sit-down" strikes swept the country. Most serious of the outbreaks was a riot at the Hershey Chocolate Plant at Hershey, Pa., where a force of Pennsylvania farmers ousted 500 sit-down strikers, and clubbed union leaders. Settlement was made when employees agreed to ballot for or against the CIO. The latter was defeated in the balloting.

Police and tear gas routed 150 strikers from the Yale and Towne plant in Detroit, while nine members of a rival union were shot in Galena, Kan., when zinc and lead miners staged a demonstration. A similar riot occurred in the canning industry at Stockton, Cal.

The end of the month found the steel-helmeted men of Maine's National Guard taking over the Lewiston-Auburn shoe strike area.

Shipping was twice brought to a standstill. First a CIO radio union bottled up the International Mercantile Marine charging "scabs" were being employed. Second the International Longshoremen's Union called a general strike against the Cunard and Furness lines, an AFL unit, demanding recognition in Montreal. The issue was settled peacefully, the AFL emerging victorious over the CIO.

Meanwhile at Washington, debate after debate followed in the Senate, and finally a move to have sit-downs declared illegal was squelched. The crowning climax to the "labor month" came when the Supreme Court validated the Wagner Act, giving organized labor its greatest judicial victory.

Although it looked pretty much like the rainy-month was an "All Lewis show," the CIO director was handed his set-backs.

A strike at the Canadian plant of General Motors at Oshawa was settled through negotiations with the local Canadian Union. American leaders of the CIO were specifically barred by Premier Mitchell Hepburn who refused to deal with "paid foreign agitators."

The war in Spain moved on unabated as General Franco's rebel forces bombarded their way towards the Basque capital, Bilbao, in the north.

Most shocking news was that imparted by Franco to International News Service in an exclusive interview when he estimated the war dead at 500,000!

Three days after a British warning to Franco to leave English shipping alone, rebel planes dropped bombs in the vicinity of the H. M. S. Gallant. The foreign office quickly sent the destroyer Garland to the scene and the rebel-leader promised it wouldn't happen again.

A British privately-owned food ship successfully ran the insurgent blockade around Bilbao as thousands of hungry Loyalists cheered. A British destroyer, at anchor several miles out, refused to lend aid to the merchantman, warning "enter at your own risk." Later, additional British food ships made Bilbao port safely.

In London, preparations were under way for the world's most colorful event—the coronation on May 12.

King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth ran through their "lessons" in the routine of coronation service, while America's ambassador Gerard agreed to wear "silk pants" to the crowning—as did J. P. Morgan, who said he had no intention of "going in his nightgown."

Here, There and Everywhere

wild month chasing down clues in quest of the slayer of a beautiful model, her mother, and a border... at Moscow the Soviet Government ordered a 20 per cent increase in the total production of all foodstuffs and consumer goods... at Havana the Havana University resumed operations after four years of educational paralysis... in India, the new constitution granting semi-home rule for 11 legislative provinces went into effect... at Rome Pope Pius made his first public appearance since falling ill and delivered a tirade against Communism... at Washington, President Roosevelt sounded the wishes of the nation by declaring he hoped no additional taxes would be necessary... at Topeka, Kan., John Hamilton's wife began divorce proceedings against the National Republican Chairman... at Wilmington, Del., Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation was restrained from "sneaking" a couple of minority stockholders who demanded 75-year-old

Charles M. Schwab retire... at Honolulu, 12 navy flying boats safely landed with 78 men after flying in mass formation from San Diego... at Duck Hill, Miss., two negroes who had been accused of murdering a white man were lynched... at Trenton, N. J., John Quinn, United States District Attorney, won his battle to bring the sleuthing Ellis R. Parkers to trial after he was backed up in his fight by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings... at New York the mystic cult of Father Divine, the man who calls himself "God" was disrupted when police seized the Messiah as the outgrowth of a stabbing and riot in one of his "heavens"... at Washington, President Roosevelt's suggestion for the revision of the Supreme Court brought a wave of opinion pro and con, with the D. A. R. voting not to support... at Berlin, Hitler celebrated his 48th birthday by dragging out his powerful military machines on parade... along the Spanish frontier, 27 nations began a patrol for the purpose of preventing intervention... at Mexico City, the trial of Leon Trotsky to determine his guilt or innocence of Soviet sabotage charges was labeled a "fiasco" by Carlton Beals, member of the investigating commission.

GREETING SPRING WITH VARIETY

Chicken Baked in Milk

Broiled chicken, fried chicken, fricassee chicken, chicken with dumplings. Spring is just the time to try chicken baked in milk.

Cut chicken into portions, sprinkle with a mixture of salt, pepper and flour. Saute in shortening, or chicken fat until browned. Put into baking pan and sprinkle lightly with flour. Cover with liquid, using all milk, or half milk and half stock.

Cover and bake in slow oven until nearly done. Remove cover during the last half hour of cooking to brown. If the sauce separates, drain off and beat with a rotary beater to restore smoothness. Chopped parsley may be added, or a few chopped chives for variety.

Fruit Gingerbread

This recipe is useful when guests are anticipated, since it may be stored in the refrigerator until ready for use.

Cream three-fourths cup shortening and one cup light brown sugar. Sift together three cups flour, one-half teaspoon baking soda, one teaspoon bakin' powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt and one teaspoon each ginger and cinnamon. Add to first mixture and store in ice-box until ready for use. At baking time, remove mix from icebox and break up with a fork. Beat two eggs thoroughly and to them add one cup sour milk and three-fourths cup molasses. Add liquid mixture gradually to dry ingredients, beating constantly. Blend well. This mix may be baked in this form, to serve with whipped cream, or place two and one-half cups drained fruit, such as peaches or apricots in the bottom of well-greased square cake tin, and pour the gingerbread batter over fruit. Bake in moderate oven 45 minutes. Slide out as upsidown cake. Serve with plain or whipped cream.

Tomato Dinner Ice

This is excellent for variety and for its appetizing appeal with a substantial dinner. The luncheon hostess also will snap it up as a new idea, since it forms a good partnership with any meat course.

Four cups tomato juice, two tablespoon minced celery, two tablespoons finely-minced parsley, one tablespoon sugar, two teaspoons salt, one-half teaspoon white pepper, two table-spoons lemon juice.

Stir all ingredients together and turn into tray of mechanical refrigerator, stirring frequently while freezing. When partly frozen, put into a cold bowl and beat with a rotary beater, or use electrical mixer if you have one. Return to refrigerator until time to serve.

Holland Tomatoes

Six tomatoes, salt, pepper, one-fourth cup minced bacon, fine bread crumbs, six slices bread, chopped boiled ham, prepared mustard.

Cut tomatoes in halves. Sprinkle cut sides with salt, pepper, minced bacon and bread crumbs. Place tomatoes in a greased pan and bake in hot oven 425 degrees F. until tender. Toast the bread and spread with ham and mustard mixed together. Place a half of tomato on each slice and serve at once.

Cheese-Orange Spread

If your husband doesn't like whipped cream on his gingerbread, try this grand "icing": Combine one package cream cheese, with grated rind of one orange and two teaspoons powdered sugar. Cream well and add one and one-half tablespoons orange juice. Also delicious for cup cakes.

COTTON CLOTHES
MAKE APPEARANCE
FOR ALL FUNCTIONS

By Miss Edna Stephany

(Home Economics Representative)
Cottons go practically anywhere that silk crepes can go these days and so when warm weather comes there is nothing quite so satisfactory as the frocks that take to the wash tub and emerge looking fresh, crisp and new. Pay enough for your new cottons and linens to guarantee them being color fast, pre-shrunk, and having the latest improvement—a permanent finish. This means they are treated to lessen their wrinkling.

The terms, Sanforized, Bellmanized, Vitalized, and Vat dyed, refer to finishing processes. Ask your salespersons the meaning of them. Cotton garments are exposed to sunlight and repeated washings and so should be colored with dyes fast to both. Vat dyes give the most satisfactory color fastness.

For the tailored dress there are two-like linens or cottons, pique, everlasting, and plain linen.

Dimities, talcum powder muslin, powder puff muslin, fine voile, and dotted Swiss make dainty dresses for warm afternoons. Cotton lace is more popular than ever and is a good choice for either the street length, afternoon or the evening ensemble.

For evening dresses there are new organdies which are much more interesting than the plain organdy we have known so long and still like so much. One of these is a fine seersucker finish in a leaf design, another is a self color print—for example, a white leafy design on white organdy. A very fine voile is made from Pima cotton which is a variety of long staple cotton grown in one of the south-western states.

Large prints on linen, as well as the plain colors, are popular for the contrasting jackets you will want, and they will be equally appropriate for the linen, wool, or silk dress, provided the color combination is pleasing.

MISSING LICENSE PLATES

KELSO, Wash.—(INS)—Somewhere in the state of Washington is a man with a car which has no 1937 license plates. The county auditor here reported the man bought the "slightly used" machine for $7.50, and then refused to buy license plates when he found they would cost him almost as much as the car—seven dollars. A new ruling would have forced him to pay $1.25 for each of three times the car was transferred in 1936, plus the regular $3.25 license fee.

MOOSE ON THE LOOSE

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—(INS)—A big bull moose, roaming the area near Greenwater Pond in East Lee, was sighted by several motorists recently. The moose passed between two automobiles, climbed a steep embankment, made its way over a wire fence, and browsed in a nearby lot.

HIGH SCHOOL J. V. TEAM KEEPS AT TOP OF LEAGUE

By Herin Corn
(H. S. Press Representative)

The Bristol High School J. V. team maintained the top seat in the Junior High School League standing when the McGuire tutored lads found themselves holding the longer end of a 10-4 score as they defeated the cellar-dwelling Trevose nine.

Hank Russo, local hurler, out-pitched Ray Despo, to be given by the umpire the verdict—a victory. Russo allowed but two hits and fanned seven, while his mates touched Despo, who blanked the Bristol boys in the first two cantos, for six clouts.

In the start of the fifth the home-owners were leading by the score of 4 to 1. When Russo betook himself to the batterfront, he saw what was almost to be his Waterloo. He started out fine but when his opponent, fire finger, Despo, came to the plate the trouble began. The latter hit a bounding single in right field. And Russo having gone through five tense innings was completely shattered and was removed from the game after two runs had crossed the home plate.

He was replaced by Carl Leinheiser, varsity twirler, who came into the game with the bases full and pulled the game out of the red. He finished the game, during which only one run came in and this by virtue of an error.

OWLS GET SET-BACK AT NEWTOWN; SCORE, 16-3

By Bob MacFarland
(Bensalem Press Representative)

The Bensalem Owls journeyed to Newtown Tuesday and received a 16-3 setback in a league tilt. The constant and timely hitting of the Newtown team enabled it to hold the lead throughout the game. Bensalem collected 8 hits and Newtown socked out 13 safe singles. Probably the best hit of the game came in the seventh inning when MacKenzie, pinch-hitting for Cahill, drove out a long triple into center field.

Joe Cahill, the Bensalem hurler for the entire game, set down 5 batters on strike-outs and walked 4. Newtown hurlers, Jamney and Gray, struck out 5 and passed 2.

ODD FELLOWS' NINE TO OPEN SEASON MAY 10

According to Bobby Sutton, manager, the Odd Fellows baseball team intends to present a very formidable lineup to the followers of the Bristol Twilight League. The circuit will open its season May 10th.

Sutton has quite an array of colorful players in his lineup. For catching duty he is banking on Joe Dougherty, who formerly caught for the Caseys.

He has "Jimmy" Cooper for his third-sacker. Many fans believed Cooper led this department last season. Johnny Dick will cavort at the short-stop berth.

The old war-horse, "Milt" Jones, will still be on the firing line, along with Harry Minster and Allison Hill, the Indian twirler.

Other players on the roster are: Freddy Hibbs, Benny Paul, Leo Hibbs, Charlie Ibrig, Paul Moore and "Red" Dewnap.

On the opening night of the schedule, the Hibernians will meet St. Ann's on Leedom's field, and Rohm and Hans battles the Grundy team on Landreth's field.

PHILA. STARS BOOKED TO PLAY HERE TONIGHT

The baseball game to be played on Landreth's field at Bristol tonight at 6.15 should be a most interesting game, as the Farmers have won two games and should be better with each contest, but they will have to be very good to hold the Philadelphia Stars, as this club has won 14 out of 15 games played this season.

The Stars have one of the heaviest hitting independent teams in eastern baseball and Landreth's will have to be on their toes every minute of the game with flashy fielding to hold the colored boys in check.

This is the first time the Philadelphia Stars have played in this vicinity and a big crowd is expected for the game.

The line-up:
Bensalem's Philadelphia Stars: Ted Page, right field; Roy Parnell, left field; "Popeye" Harris, first base; Jack Wilson or Dewey Cready, third base; Jake Dunn, center field; Halley Harding, second base; Ed Tarvey, short-stop; Larry Brown or Ed Casey, catcher; Lamoy Yokeley, Rocky Ellis, Tommy Thompson, Slim Jones, Webster McDonald, pitchers.

Umpire behind the plate, John Elmer; umpire on the bases, Joe Kervick.

NOBEL PRIZE VALUE OFF

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — (INS) — Each of the Nobel Prizes to be awarded next winter will be worth 158,463 kronor ($42,468.00 approximately), which is somewhat less than the 1936 prizes, each of which was worth 159,849 kronor or about $42,839.60.

Courageous Comebacks

By BURNLE

ILLNESS AND INJURIES THREATENED TO END TED'S CAREER—BUT—NOW HE'S AGAIN KNOCKING AT THE MIDDLEWEIGHT CHAMPS DOOR!

It takes real courage—moral as well as physical—to come back as an athlete after a serious siege of illness has threatened to end one's career.

Alice Marble did it. A couple of years ago, just when she seemed headed for the tennis heights, she suffered a breakdown due to the strain of too much tennis. Pleurisy set in, and it seemed that the blonde Californian's net future was irrevocably shattered. But after a long rest, Alice came back—and how! Now she's the national champion—conqueror of the great Helen Jacobs.

Gamblers such as Bruce Campbell and Pee Wee Waner recently wrote baseball history by making gallant comebacks after nearly being counted out by old Man Illness. Remember the saga of Campbell's battle with the dread spinal meningitis? He was struck down early in the season and then returned from death's door to win back his regular outfield job later in the year.

Teddy Yarusz, former middleweight king, is another gallant battler who showed his mettle in the face of illness and adversity. Teddy was a sick man when he lost his title to Babe Risko, and he suffered several broken ribs that also set him back. It was thought that his ring career was over, but the lion-hearted Pittsburgher came back to lick the man who had dethroned him, and is now once again on the threshold of the middleweight throne.

COX AND OLSON GIVEN DRAW AT ARENA BOUT

TRENTON, N. J., May 6—With both contestants practically out on their feet after a gruelling 35 minutes of wrestling, the feature bout at the Arena last night between Dynamite Joe Cox and Cliff Olson ended in a draw as Referee Tommy Parsonett counted out both principals as they mauled each other on the ringside floor.

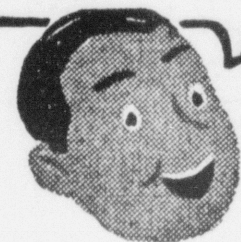

The wrestlers had won a fall apiece, and were so anxious to gain the deciding fall that their anxiety apparently got the best of them, for they tossed caution to the wind as they stalked about the ring waiting for the opportunity to make the kill.

Cox had the better of the going up until the sudden ending, but Joe lost his balance after he had tossed Cliff from the ring and tumbled head forward between the ropes to land with a resounding thud on the floor. Both attempted to enter the ring, but were unable to free themselves from the other's grasp. Referee Parsonett, meanwhile, had completed the count, and as the contestants re-entered the ring, he raised both of their hands to designate a draw.
